Martin Predicts Ike Will Run In '56

Knowland Doubts Decision

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — House Republican leader Martin predicted Saturday that President Eisenhower will run for another term next year "for the world's sake."

Senate Republican leader Knowland said he believes Eisenhower has reached "no final decision" on a second term try.

While Knowland said the President would be "the strongest candidate" for the Republicans he never did come right out and say that he personally would favor an Eisenhower bid for reelection. Nor did he foreclose on a possibility that he himself might announce as a candidate in the event the Chief Executive retires.

The two top Republicans in Congress conferred with Eisenhower separately. They touched on both politics and legislation in their talks with the President in his office in the Gettysburg post office building.

In separate news conferences afterward, the Massachusetts congressman and the California senator emphasized that they were voicing only personal opinions on the provocative second term question. They said they got no clues from Eisenhower.

Both Martin and Knowland touched on the possibility of a tax cut next year but pegged the idea to a balanced budget.

Martin said he considered it "essential to the free world that Eisenhower 'should continue'."

Asked whether that means he believes the President will be a candidate next year, Martin replied:

"Personally I think yes. I do think so. Personally, my opinion is that he will find, assuming that he will pass the medical examinations—which we all believe he will, and hope for—I think he will come to that stage next year where he will simply for the world's sake—he will have to continue."

The House GOP leader thus lined up alongside Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall, who saw Eisenhower last Monday.

Hall told reporters he personally felt Eisenhower would run again "if he feels he is able."

Seek Man, 34, For Questioning In Rape-Slaying

CHICAGO (AP) — A 34-year-old man was sought for questioning Saturday night in the death of a 60-year-old housewife who was beaten, raped and strangled in her suburban Harvey home.

The victim, whose battered, nude body was found late Friday by her husband, was Mrs. Ruth Beal.

Police Chief Matt Romer of the suburb, south of Chicago, said Mrs. Beal's nose was broken in a struggle with her assailant. When her husband, Larry, 52, returned home from his job in an Illinois Central railroad mail room, he found the woman's body, partly covered by rugs in a rear bedroom.

Her hands had been tied behind her with a stocking. Another stocking was around her neck. The Beal house was in disorder, apparently ransacked by the slayer.

The police chief said that neighbors of the Beals told of seeing a former boarder visit the Beal house twice Friday. He was identified from a photograph, Romer said, as Steve Pafco, 34, a welder who is separated from his wife and child.

Romer said Pafco's visits to the Beal house were unusual, if only because he had been ordered out of it a month ago when the Beals objected to his conduct.

The victim was the mother of two children, Mrs. Barbara Hoffman, 21, of Tempe, Ariz., and a son, Frank, 16, who is a high school student at Harvey.

Chicago police crime laboratory experts examined the slaying scene for evidence. Their findings were not made public.

The method of the killing recalled the Nov. 23 strangling of Mrs. Edith Jamieson, 47, whose body was found trussed in a South Side alley, about 11 miles from the Beal home. The Jamieson slaying has not been solved.

Harriman Hat Is In; Not As Favorite Son

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Gov. Averell Harriman of New York said Saturday his name will go in nomination for president at the 1956 Democratic national convention but continued to insist he is not an active candidate.

Harriman parried a round of questions from newsmen on his candidacy at a press conference before he was to address the national convention of Young Democrats.

"My name will go into nomination by the New York delegation," Harriman said. He amplified that it would not be as a favorite son.

Man Kills Wife During Nightmare, Takes Own Life

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — "I had an awful dream. . . I couldn't live without her, so this is the only way out for me," a young farmer explained in a suicide note after he apparently shot his wife to death during a nightmare.

The body of Mrs. Geraldine Aakre, 29, was found Saturday morning, with three bullet wounds in the chest.

Eight hours later, on a country road 1½ miles from the Aakre farm, two neighbors found the Aakre car mired in snow. The engine was running and the body of Alden Aakre, 31, was found inside.

A hose connected with the exhaust pipe ran through the trunk and inside the car.

A note in the glove compartment said:

"I had an awful dream. I guess I was dreaming of a bandit after us. I didn't wake up until it was all over. I felt so bad and didn't know what else to do other than to take my own life. I have always loved her so much. I couldn't live without her, so this is the only way out for me."

"Also, the two wonderful children we have. She has always been such a lovely wife to me since we were married. Why this should happen no one knows. I guess. She has always been so kind all of the time, and I do love her very much."

The note was signed, "Alden."

TRAIN CRASH KILLS THREE, INJURES FOUR

EBENSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Two Pennsylvania Railroad freight trains smashed head-on today on a spur line and killed three crewmen. Four others were injured.

The trains carried a combined crew of 12. The crash occurred on the Cresson branch of the railroad 9 miles north of Cresson. A PRR spokesman said a 3-unit diesel and cabin going north collided with a 2-unit diesel with 20 loaded coal cars travelling south on a single track. He said the lead diesel and 4 loaded coal cars of the south-bound train derailed. The second diesel was tilted parallel to the tracks.

Denounce 'Bait Advertising,' Victimizes Many Poor People

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission Saturday denounced "bait advertising" as a menace to the public's pocketbook. It was understood that the statement was the first of several in which the commission would pinpoint trade practices which it considers especially undesirable.

Bait advertising is the practice of advertising a cheap piece of merchandise with the idea of luring the customer into buying a higher priced article. The FTC regularly orders firms it discovers using such advertising to stop. If they violate the order they are subject to a $5,000 per day penalty.

The FTC said many poor people are victimized by the practice, including old folk living on small pensions. It cited the recent case of a New Jersey widow who was baited by a $29.50 sewing machine.

"She reasoned that she could eke out this amount from her $80-a-month income and, in the long run, pay for it by making her own clothes," the statement said.

"Seeing the machine advertised in a local paper, she telephoned the appliance store selling it. A salesman arrived at her home, without the 'bargain' machine—the store was out of them at the moment—but he asked for and got a $10 deposit. Several days later, he brought her the advertised machine. The widow tried to sew on it, but she testified she couldn't use it because 'it jumped all over the table.'"

"The salesman, of course, had Asked about the candidacy of Adlai Stevenson, 1952 nominee who is the only avowed candidate so far this year, Harriman said:

"It is too early to make up our minds on candidates. What's important now is get the party together and decide what are the issues."

Harriman said his name will not be entered in any preferential primaries.

Harriman said the issue in 1956 will be "President Eisenhower's surrender to big business and special interests."

In a speech to the convention, Harriman said the "great and crucial campaign next year will be a contest between contrasting philosophies of government."

"Our party represents the interests of the people whereas the Republican party still represents big business and special interests. While President Eisenhower has been trying to appease the dissident factions in his own party, his administration has been taken over by special interests who always have their eye on the ball."

Despite Tammany leader Carmine DeSapio's trips about the country in his behalf and his own far ranging speaking tour, Harriman has stuck to his political guns about not being an active candidate but standing ready to accept the nomination if it comes his way.

In the "give 'em hell" style of oratory that Harry Truman brought to political perfection, the one-time New Deal trouble shooter charged that the Republicans "belied its promises to labor," attempted to give away the nation's natural resources, "scuttled the public housing program," entered the "collusive and notorious Dixie-Yates deal" and came up with a "do-it-yourself" education program "that was such a travesty the Congress wouldn't consider it seriously."

Harriman zeroed in his biggest oratorical guns on the farm situation.

"During all the years of the Truman administration," he said, "there was not a single year when the average price of farm products fell below 100 per cent of parity."

"But there has not been a single month of the Eisenhower administration when they have been that high. They have fallen steadily month after month, and are now at 82."

Bridges and causeways link the six main Bermuda islands together to form a continuous road 24 miles long.

another machine with him for $169 and the down payment would, by happy coincidence, amount to just $29.50. Cheap at the price, too, he confided, because there was a scratch on it. Bewildered she paid the remaining $19.50.

"The ensuing payments were too steep for her and her machine was taken away. There was no refund of the money she had paid, and no homemade clothes to repay her over the long run. Bait advertising had claimed another victim."

The FTC said it got an order to the firm involved to stop the practice.

The agency said bait advertising cannot be spotted by any single warning sign but that a combination of the following should put a buyer on guard:

"1. A product priced at a startlingly lower price than that charged for the same kind of product at other stores.

"2. Reluctance on the part of salesmen to show the advertised product.

"3. Disparagement of the advertised product, and insistence by the salesman on showing more expensive types.

"4. Explanation that the advertised product on hand is only a floor sample and that long delay will be encountered in getting others like it.

"5. A sell-out of the 'bargain' in a suspiciously short time, 'but let me show you something else even better.'"

German Pianist Hurt In Bus Crash, Wife, GI Killed

STUTTGART, Germany (AP) — German pianist Walter Gieseking was reported out of danger Saturday after suffering severe head injuries in a bus crash that killed his wife and a U.S. soldier.

Doctors withheld the news of his wife's death for fear the shock would cause the world famous 60-year-old musician a setback.

Eleven Americans—seven soldiers and four civilians—were injured. Five others including the driver, escaped unhurt. The Army said names of the soldiers would not be released until next of kin are notified. The civilians were identified as Irving M. Shore, 31, his wife, Lillian, 28, of Brooklyn, and Leroy A. Kellogg, 40, and his wife, Phyllis, of Fairfield, Conn.

The crash occurred last night when the bus, carrying 18 passengers and the driver, skidded on ice at 70 miles an hour and smashed into a bridge abutment. The passengers were en route from Frankfurt Airport, which was fog-bound, to Stuttgart to catch a plane for Rome.

Two Men Save Neighbor But Lose Lives In Attempt

ELMWOOD, Ill. (AP) — Two men, overlooked by a fire department rescue squad, were asphyxiated in a backyard septic tank after helping save a neighbor from its deadly gases Saturday.

Deputy Coroner Horace Payton pieced together this version of the tragedy:

David Schisler, 31, was cleaning the underground tank at his home when he was partly overcome by gas and screamed for help.

Two of his neighbors, Clifton Clark, 39, co-publisher of the Elmwood Gazette, and Keith Lucas, 39, a linotype operator for the paper, ran to Schisler's aid.

Clark and Lucas jumped into the tank and pushed Schisler part way out before they, too, were overcome and slipped away from the tank opening.

A fire department inhalator squad, summoned by another neighbor, arrived, hauled Schisler the rest of the way out of the tank and began reviving him. Not noticing the other two men firemen replaced the top of the tank.

It wasn't known that Clark and Lucas were in the tank until Schisler regained consciousness about 15 minutes later and asked:

"Where are Clark and Lucas?"

Firemen then removed the two men, but it was too late. Lucas, the father of two children, was pronounced dead at an Elmwood hospital. Clark, father of an 18-year-old daughter, was dead upon arrival at a nearby Peoria hospital.

'Incommunicado' GI Sought As Wife Arrives Penniless

FT. POLK, La. (AP) — The Army pressed its search Saturday for Sgt. John N. DeGiovanni, a mock prisoner of war in Exercise Sagebrush. His wife and small daughter have arrived penniless in New York from Europe.

Red Cross officials came to the aid of Mrs. Rosa Maria Breu DeGiovanni and her 3-year-old daughter, Joann, when they learned of their plight.

But there was some question as to whether Red Cross and the Army could get the 21-year-old bride together with her husband—or even let him know she is in this country.

The sergeant at last report was still being carried as a prisoner of "aggressor" forces, who late Saturday were in the process of retreating down the south end of the maneuver field in a seven-million acre chunk of southwest Louisiana.

Exercise Sagebrush officials traced DeGiovanni to an 82nd Airborne Division ordnance battalion.

He was captured during the first phase of Sagebrush, they said, when his tank broke down. The soldier was required to stay with his tank. Officials said that under the mock war rules DeGiovanni's whereabouts remains a military secret.

DeGiovanni, 25, met and married Rosa Maria while he was stationed in Europe. He returned to the United States last February and was assigned to the 1st Armored Division at Ft. Hood, Tex.

His wife said she arrived in New York without funds because she was robbed of all her money while visiting her mother on the Isle of Jersey, in the English Channel, before sailing for the United States.

Humphrey Charges Benson 'Borrowed' His Soil Bank Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) said Saturday a soil bank proposal he made to meet farm problems has been "borrowed" by the administration and converted to its own purpose.

Humphrey, who has been pounding at the farm issue for months, complained in a statement that Secretary of Agriculture Benson has "watered down" the Humphrey plan by removing the "standards I had provided to safeguard farmers and consumers alike."

The result, Humphrey said, would give Benson instead of Congress the power of decision over how much land should be taken out of cultivation and how much the farmers should be paid for doing so.

Various soil bank plans have been suggested with this basic idea: Farmers would be paid so much an acre by the government for planting grasses instead of other crops on land not needed for food and fiber production. This would help cut down on surplus production and at the same time improve the soil's fertility. Land thus set aside would be said to be drawing fertility interest in a "soil bank."

Earlier this year, Humphrey said, GOP farm officials rejected his soil bank payment plan as unlikely to work and as too costly.

Now, Humphrey said, Benson has adopted the same idea, with variations of his own.

Hunter Kills Girl In Accident

MADRID, Iowa (AP) — A 14-year-old girl, hunting a Christmas tree on a fog-shrouded knoll, was accidentally killed Saturday by a hunter who fired in her direction when he mistook the girl's dog for a fox, Sheriff Steve Beaulieu reported.

Deanna Lou Lincoln and her brother Lammie, 9, accompanied by their Collie, were hunting a tree not far from their Lincoln farm home near here.

Alan Moughin, 38, Woodward farmer, said he was hunting foxes with four companions when he saw the dog atop a knoll. In the fog, he said, it looked like a fox but after he fired he heard what sounded like a wail. He ran to the spot and found Deanna dying.

Coroner G. H. Sutton ruled the death was an accident.

THIS SANTA GETS THE SACK — Santa Claus appeared in the Monroe Street Court today as a defendant.

He was listed as Sam Persons, 53, but he was recognized at once as Santa because of his costume. He was accused of imbibing too much bottled merriment and formally charged with disorderly conduct.

Santa told Judge Jacob M. Braude he had been assigned to solicit contributions for a charitable organization, and had been stationed in front of a Loop department store until the spirit moved him to Skid Row Friday.

The judge dismissed the charge but stated sternly: "You let down a lot of kids. Turn in your uniform."

Blizzard Lashes Wide Section Of Midwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A blizzard lashed a broad section of the Midwest Saturday. It combined snow ranging up to 10 inches, strong north winds of up to 40 m.p.h. and stinging cold.

At least six deaths in traffic were attributed to dangerous driving conditions. Four were in Nebraska and two in Illinois.

The Weather Bureau labeled the onslaught a blizzard and "a real winter snowstorm" — although winter is 18 days away by the calendar.

Scottsbluff, Neb., had 10 inches of snow on the ground. Chadron, Neb., had seven inches, and Goodland, Kans., four inches. Gregory, S. D., was burdened with a fresh 10-inch snow fall.

Blowing and drifting snow, with temperatures close to zero even at midday, dealt a staggering blow to the storm area.

Snow was forecast for Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois and Indiana.

A heavy fog settled on Chicago, and some planes were diverted to Milwaukee and other cities. Meigs Field on the lake front suspended operations. Two men were killed near Lincoln, Ill., when their car missed a curve in the fog.

Skies began to clear in Wyoming and Colorado after the storm dumped up to 14 inches of snow on Wyoming and up to six inches on Colorado.

A mass of cold air moved into the Midwest after dropping the temperature to 12 below zero at Cut Bank, Mont.

Up to 10 inches of new snow was forecast for Minnesota through Sunday along with temperatures of zero to 10 above.

East of the snow and cold zone, many areas were dampened by rain or wretched in fog.

The tops of Chicago's skyscrapers were obscured by a heavy fog. A narrow belt of sleet and freezing rain extended from northwestern Iowa into southern Wisconsin.

Fog covered much of the land from northern Missouri to Ohio. Rain fell in the Middle and Lower Mississippi Valley and in the Ohio Valley.

Freezing weather covered the snow zone and reached west almost to the northern part of the Pacific Coast.

E. German Control Of Canals Threatens W. Berlin Squeeze

BERLIN (AP) — A new squeeze on West Berlin was threatened Saturday night from East Germany's control of inland waterways traffic.

The Russians have turned over control of permits for canal traffic between the city and West Germany, it was disclosed, and the German Communist regime appeared determined to use its new authority to wrest some kind of recognition from the Bonn Republic.

West German officials said the problem may be acute when all old permits expire Dec. 31 and applications are made for new permits at the beginning of the year.

These officials said East Germany is insisting that problems concerning the canals be handled between the transport ministries of the two rival Germanies, and not on the level of lesser agencies.

The object thus appeared to win quasi-recognition.

The West regards these permits as a technical matter, to be dealt with on a lower level.

Production Expanding Rapidly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia's atomic stockpile now may be slightly less than half that of the United States, but her production rate is expanding swiftly. So swiftly that, if the Soviets are inclined to gamble on war they could conceivably do so within the next three or four years.

This estimate is based on widely diversified pieces of information reaching Washington, including the factor of the recent hydrogen test explosion in the Soviet Union.

The U. S. S. R., which had no nuclear explosive until 1949 could attain parity in atomic tonnage by 1959. (Nuclear tonnage is measured by the force of an explosion, rated in thousands or millions of tons of dynamite.)

But Russia may not necessarily wait for parity.

If and when Soviet strategists come to believe that they have enough bombers available to get through air defenses in the Western Hemisphere and Europe and strike one massive, conclusive blow, there is always the possibility they may try it. If the United States retaliatory force, at home and abroad, were paralyzed by the initial attack, the Western world's superior stockpile of atomic bombs would not matter.

There is another factor that nuclear strategists use in their computations: an estimate of the ability to absorb an atomic strike and still retain enough force to hit back.

American military leaders believe the United States has this capacity. Even with a 60 per cent loss of aircraft, the Strategic Air Command believes it would retain retaliatory force.

None of them say the present defense system of radar warning nets, interceptor aircraft, anti-aircraft guided missiles and guns could stop an enemy striking force 100 per cent. But they argue that bases are so scattered, in the Western Hemisphere and overseas, that not all of them could be "taken out" in the initial blow.

Moreover, the Air Force follows a policy of moving units of its strategic air force from one base to another constantly, to make more difficult the target evaluations of enemy intelligence.

Into the estimates also goes the factor of "reaction time." This is the time needed to get the Strategic Air Command's bombers into the air and on the way toward enemy targets. Reaction time involves many things—getting crews from homes or ready rooms into their planes, fueling, loading with nuclear weapons.

Each year this reaction time has been reduced by SAC, from days to hours, and the goal now is minutes.

Ambergris, castor, civet, and musk are the four animal substances used in perfumery.

Bloodmobile Will Visit Jerseyville, Grafton Dec. 9-10

JERSEYVILLE—The Bloodmobile Unit of the American Red Cross will be in Jersey county for two days, Dec. 9 and 10. A complete unit of eight beds will be in Jerseyville Dec. 9 and on Dec. 10, split units of four beds will be set up at Grafton and Jerseyville.

Mrs. Rodney Jacoby, chairman of the Blood Program for the Jersey county chapter of the American Red Cross, stated that the visit here will be one of two to be made by the Bloodmobile unit during the ensuing fiscal year.

The definite quota for the county has not been announced but it is anticipated that it will be in the amount of about 350 pints. In meeting this quota, it will be essential that some 500 donors be in prospect. A number of rejections is always expected and some would be donors are often compelled to cancel out at the last moment for various causes.

The members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Jersey Community hospital are handling the recruiting of blood donors in Jerseyville and the surrounding territory. Mrs. Lee Nail is chairman of the auxiliary. Mrs. Nail reports that an attempt is being made to obtain a general solicitor in the city wards and outlying areas who may select her own workers.

The recruitment in Grafton will be done under the direction of the American Legion Auxiliary of which Mrs. Leo Burns is president. An effort will be made to contact all prospective donors, but in the event some donor is interested in contributing and is not contacted by some worker, they may report at Grafton or Jerseyville at the scheduled time for the Bloodmobile visit.

HILLTOPPERS PLAY DEC. 9

Scene from "Juno and the Paycock"

The Hilltop Players of Illinois College will present their first major production of the year, "Juno and the Paycock," by Sean O'Casey, at the Jacksonville High school auditorium Friday evening Dec. 9.

The three-act play is set in Ireland in 1922 during the Irish Civil War. All the action takes place in the two-room apartment of a tenement house in Dublin.

Starring in the production Friday night are Ed Foreman, as Captain Boyle, the "paycock", and Harriet Lonergan, as his wife Juno. Boyle, once the captain of an old coal barge, is usually found drinking and hobnobbing around with his friend Joxer, Alan Engle.

There are two Boyle children, Johnny, played by Henry Kruse, who has been wounded fighting in the Irish Civil War and Mary, his sister, played by Diana Dowdy. Mary throws aside her former suitor, Jerry Devine, played by Al Fisher, in favor of Charles Bentham, played by Bud Hallier.

At the outset of the play, Boyle is unemployed and does not appear to be making any effort to find a job. When a job opportunity does arise, the old captain acquires pains in his "ol' legs" again. His difficulties seem solved, however, when Charlie Bentham comes to tell Boyle that he expects to inherit 2,000 pounds. Because of this the captain goes on a spending spree—buying on credit and borrowing from Mrs. Madigan, portrayed by Doris Ann Cordis, and from other neighbors.

Upon Bentham's disappearance it is discovered that he has written the will in such a vague manner that Boyle cannot collect his money. Further complications result when it is discovered that Johnny is partially responsible for the murder of a republican leader. The play reaches its climax when Mary and Juno are forced to make a grave decision regarding their future.

In supporting roles are Sharon Dowland and Irene Bonaroff as neighbors, Ed Flynn and Al Taenzer as furniture men, Dave Pfeiffer as a coal bucket vendor and Wilma Dobbs as a button seller. "Needles" Nugent, a tailor to whom Boyle owes money, is portrayed by David Robinson. Jim Symons acts as a mobilizer for the republican party. George Reilly and Jim Symons are the two burglars who capture Johnny. The part of Mrs. Tancered, whose son is killed in the revolution, is played by Cicely Carson.

The sixth annual meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliaries of Illinois was held Thursday and Friday, Dec. 1 and 2, in Springfield. A Jacksonville woman, Mrs. Warner Newcomb, was elected second vice president for 1956.

Mrs. Newcomb attended the governing board meeting on Thursday, Dec. 1, and returned to Springfield for the conference on Friday.

At the luncheon meeting Emil O. Stalhut, administrator of the Abraham Lincoln hospital at Lincoln, delivered the address. Mr. Stalhut's talk concerned the community and its hospital. He put the activities of a community in three categories: those who make things happen; those who watch things happen and those who never know what happened. He also stated, "there is more apathy usually in a community than antagonism."

Dr. Karl S. Klicka, director of the Presbyterian hospital in Chicago, spoke to the group after the luncheon hour on the Administrator Looks at the Auxiliary. One of his remarks that he made and of which he mentioned he could speak at length on was, "People Who Do Things Only for Themselves are Soon Forgotten."

Miss Elizabeth Sanborn, secretary of Commission on Hospital Auxiliaries for the American Hospital Association gave a report on the American Hospital Association's Institutes on Leadership. In 1956 there will be three of such sessions on Leadership: one in Chicago; one in Cleveland and the other in Seattle, Wash. She told of the seven steps that lead to effective Auxiliary work.

At the close of the afternoon session there was a short business session with the election of officers. The following women were named to office on the governing board of the State Auxiliary program for 1956: Mrs. Walter B. Smith Hillsboro, president; Mrs. Alfred Moses of Maywood, first vice president; Mrs. Newcomb of Jacksonville, second vice president and Mrs. Leonard Stearns of Anna, secretary.

MR. and MRS. JOHN ROY WILSON

Virginia Girl is Bride

VIRGINIA—Miss Jeanette Crowell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Crowell of Beardstown and formerly of near Virginia, became the bride of John R. Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wilson, of Versailles, in a ceremony pronounced at three o'clock, Sunday afternoon, November 27, in the First Methodist church in Beardstown.

Rev. Boyd L. Rudd, received the vows, using the double ring ceremony, before an altar banked with white, greenery and baskets of white chrysanthemums. Tapers in tall candelabra lighted the altar.

The main aisle of the church was marked with white satin ribbons. Preceding the ceremony Miss Barbara Wilson, sister of the groom, sang "Because" and "Ich Liebe Dich." She was accompanied by Mrs. Charles Hobcock, organist, who also presented a recital preceding the ceremony and played the traditional processional and recessional marches.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. J. D. Ellis, of Peoria, as maid of honor and Mrs. Roy Ross, of Springfield, cousin of the bride, as bridesmaid.

Frederick Still, of Versailles, served as best man. Ushers were Lawrence Wiese and Bill Fuqua, of Versailles and David Paisley, of Toulon.

In Lace And Satin

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional wedding gown of lace and tulle over gleaming white satin.

The closely fitted lace bodice was designed with long pointed sleeves and featured a long neckline with an interesting petal effect of scalloped lace at the shoulders. The huge skirt was made of tier on tier of lace scallops on nylon tulle that floated into a chapel sweep over skirts of net and lustrous satin.

Her fingertip veil of imported illusion was held in place by a hat of chantilly lace trimmed with silver braid. She carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid, from which fell white satin streamers knotted with stephanotis. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls with matching earrings, a gift of the groom.

The bride's attendants wore identical gowns of forest green velvet, fashioned with fitted bodices, low necklines and full gathered net overskirts. They wore matching hats of green velvet, each fashioned with a half veil. Their flowers were Colonial bouquets of bronze and gold mums.

Mrs. Crowell, mother of the bride, chose for her daughter's wedding, a gray-pink dress with dusty rose accessories. She wore a corsage of rosebuds.

Mrs. Wilson, mother of the groom, chose a purple suit with Florida pink accessories. Her corsage was pink rosebuds.

After the reception, the couple left on a ten day wedding trip to New Orleans. For traveling, the bride chose a wool charcoal dress with red accessories and wore the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

Upon their return, the couple

Added diced cooked chicken to a plain tomato aspic. Serve with salad greens and well-seasoned mayonnaise for lunch. If you want to make the tomato aspic yourself, instead of using the canned variety, use unflavored gelatin, tomato juice and such seasoning as celery salt or onion salt. If the tomatoes are not sweet, a dash of sugar may also be added to the tomato juice and gelatin mixture before it is chilled.

Services Of Catholic Charities Reviewed

Members of the Morgan County Child Welfare Advisory Board, in their meeting at the Dunlap hotel, learned of the services offered by the Catholic Charities Agency to this and surrounding counties from Miss Lena Leone, a caseworker on the staff of that agency.

Although Morgan county has been served by the Catholic Charities for many years through its Springfield office, it was not until 1951 that a local office was established. Miss Leone, who also serves Scott, Cass and Greene counties, can be reached at Our Saviour's hospital on Monday of each week.

Services include planning with parents or other agencies for the care of children away from home either in foster homes or group care homes. Non-Catholic children are accepted for care in boarding schools and semi-correctional institutions upon referral. In some situations when parents have been unable to provide support, the county has accepted financial responsibility.

Family counseling is another area of service. In a small number of situations financial assistance has been given over a temporary period to families in need.

By far the largest volume of service given so far in this county has been the study of adoptive applications and placement of children for adoption. Another major service is assistance to unmarried mothers by helping them plan for themselves and their babies. Maternity hospital arrangements are available for those mothers who wish to leave the community. Miss Leone stressed the importance of the confidential nature of this service.

Dr. John Brazelton, vice chairman of the board, conducted the session during which it was decided to postpone the open meeting previously scheduled for December. Special guests, Miss Dunn and Miss Schmudger, both student officers of MacMurray College, were introduced by Dr. Isabel Stewart.

Other members of the advisory board in attendance were Mrs. Walter Boland, Sr., Dr. Frank Norbury, Mrs. Isabel Weller, Dr. Mary Louise Newman, Mrs. Ralph Welles, and Mrs. Russell Armstrong. Mrs. Roberta Taylor represented the staff of the Child Welfare office.

Salem Methodist WSCS Has Potluck

Mrs. Clara Thompson offered grace before the meal. The afternoon meeting was conducted by the president, Miss Mary Margaret Wax. Miss Fannie Boyd gave devotions opening with a Christmas story, the group then singing, "O Little Town of Bethlehem." Mrs. Norma Hicks read the Christmas story from the Bible and the group sang, "Silent Night." Miss Boyd read from the study book and closed with prayer.

The secretary's report was made. Forty sick calls were reported.

He was the guest of John Kirby, a pharmacist at the Kirby Drug Store, who gave a resume of Mr. Kirby's life and his services in the Jerseyville business world.

A certificate of life membership in the Jerseyville Junior Chamber of Commerce, together with a plaque, was presented to the honor guest by Charles Worsham, president of the group, who presided at the meeting.

Thirty-four members of the Jaycees were in attendance at the meeting and had their bosses with them. A special guest was a national director of the Jaycees from St. Clair, who gave a short talk.

The dinner prior to the evening's program was served by the Woman's Auxiliary of the VFW.

DOOR'S THERE BUT IT "ISN'T" — When a chain grocery recently opened a new branch in Dillonvale, Cincinnati suburb, it didn't just open the doors—it took them away entirely. The weather outside was blustery, wet and getting colder, yet somehow the storm didn't come into the store. The secret is a revolutionary "air curtain"—an invisible partition projected by blowers across the entrance. As seen above, it lets the customers enter and leave without a ruffle, but turns back weather as sternly as any door of steel or glass. But it's not effective against burglars, so after hours, the air current is switched off and a steel and glass night door is bolted in place. The "air door" is a Swiss invention, getting its first American tryout.

CACHED CASH
FREDERICKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Workers snaking logs to Keith Wine's sawmill saw a bottle pop up as the end of a log was dragged down a path. It was filled with coins. Some were dated as early as 1850, some as late as 1918. Wine said the total amount was about $130 but he advised the workers not to spend the coins until an old coin collector could make an appraisal of their worth.

Put A Skirt On The Christmas Tree

Easily Made Pattern Adds Finishing Touch To Holiday Season

BY KAY SHERWOOD
 NEA Staff Writer
 Festive finishing touch for the Christmas tree—a glitter with shining baubles—a decorated skirt to circle the base under the branches. If you like the idea but find the price tags on the gorgeous ready-made too rich for your budget, get out sewing machine and scissors. The basic design is simple and ornamentation can be light and lovely or richly elaborate.

I'm partial to the skirt pictured here because the tree motif is pretty by itself. If you have the time and enthusiasm, additional stars could be cut out and sprinkled over the she shown surface. After the holidays, the skirt can be packed away until next year.

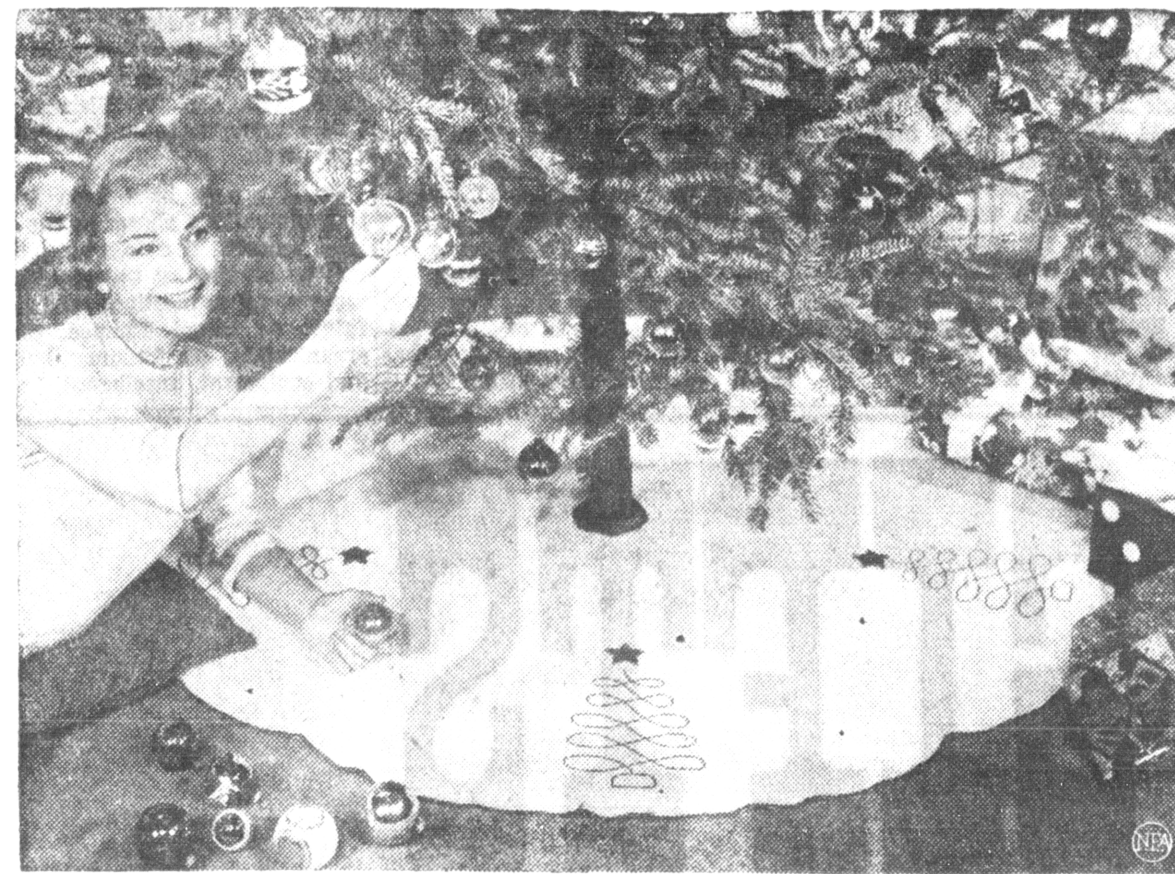

The fabric is white felt lined with red and green soutache braid circling the border and tracing the tree outline. Red and green stars are tacked down at the top of the trees.

To duplicate this effort, you'll need 13 yards of white felt 54 inches wide; 4-yard red felt; 4-yard green felt; 12 yards narrow green soutache braid; 14 yards of narrow red soutache braid; red and green thread.

Cut a 34-inch circle of white felt. Fold circle in half and cut along fold to the center to make the slash opening which allows easy placement of the apron underneath and around the tree. At the center, cut out a small circle about four or five inches in diameter to accommodate tree trunk.

Shape the outside edge to form five shallow scallops. On right side of felt, pencil the loop design of the tree in the center of each scallop.

If you're a little unsteady on tracing the design free-hand, lay it out before you start on graph paper. Rub dressmaker's chalk on back of paper, and trace line on felt with blunt end of pencil.

Adding to the season's gaiety is this ornamental Christmas tree skirt in white felt, decorated with soutache braid. Top braider attachment on the sewing machine facilitates braid stitching.

Using the top braider attachment on your machine, stitch the soutache braid along the outline. Skirt pictured has two trees in green and three trees in red braid.

Trim the edges with two rows of braid. The green braid is next to the edge, then the red. The edge of the small center circle is finished the same way. You can leave about 18 inches of braid at each end if you want to tie the apron around the tree base. Knot the ends to prevent unraveling.

Cut five stars from red and green felt and hand sew above top of each tree.

Perhaps you'd like to make an extra one as a gift. If so, here's a suggestion from a woman who cut out and helped to sew 12 similar skirts last year. Instead of slashing to the center and cutting a hole out of the middle, leave the decorated circle whole. Do, however, stitch the red and green braid circles in the middle. This will permit the person receiving the skirt to use it as a table covering if she prefers. Or she can open up the circle for her tree.

And a postscript tip from the same gal: If your daughter spies the decorative felt circle, she'll want to enlarge the center opening slightly, add a waistband and taitz off in it to a holiday party.

Which will leave us back where we started—swathing the Christmas tree base with a clean white sheet!

Shelley Winter's Dream Comes True At Her Broadway Opening

By WILLIAM GLOVER
 BROADWAY, New York (AP) — Shelley Winters won't forget her big opening night on Broadway in a hurry.

That was the evening, she says, when she magically became the dramatic actress she dreamed of being.

"All of a sudden, a whole different kind of life has opened for me," murmurs Shelley, rumping her curls. "And I'm not sure yet what it is. Always wanting to be an actress and suddenly passing that milestone—where do you go now?"

That the Winters career—at moments in the past one of Hollywood's stormiest—has reached a new phase seems clear.

The critics, as well as Shelley, say so. They poured forth praise for her artistry in the new box office success at the Lyceum, "A Hatful of Rain."

It is a drama which treats of the horrors of narcotics addiction, and Shelley portrays the wife of a doomed victim.

Altogether, it has been quite a Shelley Winters fortnight on the White Way, for two of her most recent films arrived to flank her stage debut. Ironically, the screen critics were less unanimous over her talents in at least one case than were the drama pundits.

The new movie roles, as well as "A Hatful of Rain" are deliberate efforts by the 32-year-old actress from East St. Louis to escape type-casting.

"I've been taking parts that aren't leads because I want to expand my acting range. My movie career was strange. My roles were one of the reasons for my reputation as temperamental."

During her seven-year film contract Shelley studied serious dramatics with Charles Laughton, come to New York to study in the Actor's Studio—and yearned for Broadway.

"The young kids now aren't signing those long movie contracts," she says. "They're smart. The movies think they make the stars. They don't. The public does."

That brings us to the magic which Shelley suddenly found on opening night.

Despite everyone's efforts on tour she was somehow unable to make her big third act scene come alive. She also knew that its effectiveness was vital to the show's success.

"But that opening night, something happened," she explains. "It was because of jitters, I guess, and nervous exhaustion. When that scene came I exploded. I grabbed the scene. Afterwards the director said, 'See, that's what I wanted all along.'"

Shelley flung her arms out in

Have We, In This Typewriter Infested Age, Become A Nation Of Sorry Penmen?

By ARTHUR EDSON

In this typewriter-infested age few know, or care, about Platt R. Spencer any more.

And yet only a little over a year ago a band of pilgrims reverently made its way to Geneva, Ohio, and the tomb on which is written in neat script, "P. R. Spencer."

Spencer, dead these 90 years, once influenced the writing habits of this nation. "He wrote a fine Spencerian hand," an author would say, confident that any reader would realize from this one sentence that his hero was dependable, dignified and, probably, successful.

Now these remaining disciples, members of the International Assn. of Master Penmen and Teachers of Handwriting, had come to the place where Spencer first taught his famous system and later was buried.

Unfortunately, they did not record their thoughts on this solemn occasion. But it seems inevitable that a few disturbing questions would arise.

Is fine writing, like Spencer, to die and be almost forgotten?

Are the nation's schools steadily forsaking the second of the three R's?

Will handwriting soon be all but a lost art?

Naturally the 200 or so remaining professional penmen are gloomy on all these questions. But other less prejudiced sources also believe we have become a nation of sorry writers.

Let's look at a few examples:

The Illinois Bell Telephone Co. lost $50,000 a year because its operators wrote so poorly no one could figure out who should be charged with the calls. It began a program with the business of copying; it hired an instructor to teach its employees how to write.

Insurance executives complain they can't read policy forms turned in by their salesmen. Forty-seven per cent say wretched writing loses them money.

Physicians are notorious writers, and the magazine "Medical Economics" shows one tragic result. A Missouri medical man wrote a prescription calling for 10 grams of a certain drug. To the druggist it looked like 10 grains. The story in a capsule: stricken patient... big lawsuit... testimony... jurors peer at prescription... verdict for the plaintiff... doctor pays off.

A Dallas bank official says illegible handwriting, by customers and by clerks, cost his firm $5,000 a year.

No one can say for sure how much U.S. business loses each year due to shoddy handwriting, but one guess puts it as high as 70 million dollars a year.

A group of fountain pen manufacturers, apparently afraid their product might become a museum piece like the stylus or the goose quill, last year set up the non-profit Handwriting Foundation. It since has attracted many outside the pen industry who feel that handwriting needs every boost it can get.

It the picture really this blank? Should parents make a determined effort to get schools to concentrate on penmanship?

Most schoolmen say the answer to both questions is no. They agree that penmanship isn't given the attention it once was, but they say the hours saved are better spent on other subjects. And they insist that while the average student may not write a picture book hand, he does have a simple style useful enough for most purposes.

To understand what the argument is about, let's go back a bit: In this country handwriting artistry probably never reached the peak it did in Europe, or in another civilization, China. But great value was placed on the ability to write a neat hand.

For years penmanship flowered and prospered. Platt R. Spencer, who lived from 1800 to 1864, taught his system in a chain of business colleges, and thereby left his mark upon the American hand.

Long after Spencer, as handwriting styles changed from vertical to slanted letters, professors who could write in endless curlicues were highly respected.

Almost any adult over 35 can recall the hours spent at penmanship. Remember the endless lines of overlapping O's? Or the push-pull of the pen in an effort to form an unbroken picket line?

The date of the decline and fall of this type of penmanship varies with the school system.

Some, of course, still have it. But in most schools it faded fast in the 1920s and 1930s. In many schools the depression delivered the knockout punch: Need to save money. Let's fire the penmanship teacher!

Yet the real reason for changing the methods of teaching penmanship probably wasn't financial. It was a conviction on the part of many educators that penmanship, as then taught, wasted time.

Louis A. DiGesare of Scotia, N. Y., is a calligrapher and one of the pilgrims who visited Spencer's tomb.

"Nobody cares about fine handwriting any more," DiGesare says. "I don't suppose there are 10 of us left in the country."

Drop down the scale a mite to the master penman. He too is distressed.

John G. Steele of New York does fancy print jobs. "We used to sell a million and a half to two million copies of our Palmer Method book," Steele said. "The company is still in business, but it's not like it used to be."

BEAR TAKES OVER

GREENVILLE, S. C. (AP) — The J. E. Wilcoxson family won't go riding through the Smoky Mountain National Park again with the car windows down.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilcoxson and their sons Randall and Wendell bought some sweet buns. Later, in the park, they stopped to watch the park bears.

One bear approached the car, smelled a bun left over, climbed through a window into the back seat to get it.

The Wilcoxsons didn't argue possession of the car. When the bear went in, they went out fast.

EDIBLE ANYTIME

Oysters are edible at any time they are gathered, but the idea that they should be eaten only in "R" months probably goes back to medieval times.

Ashland School Survey Meeting Next Tuesday

ASHLAND—On Tuesday, Dec. 6, at 7:30 p.m., the public is invited and urged to attend a meeting of the newly organized Community Survey Committee on Education at the Ashland high school. This meeting is being held for the purpose of explaining the benefits and future plans of the organization.

Several meetings have been held at the high school in recent weeks, out of which this committee is composed of representatives from all civic organizations in the village and the entire school district, plus delegates from each church, the town board, the school board and other interested individuals.

Officers for the group were elected as follows: chairman, Walter R. Lohman; vice chairman, Mrs. E. Y. Johnson; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. P. A. Votsmier. The officers with R. A. Newell, B. W. Bierman and L. A. Stevens make up the executive committee.

Study groups have been formed to study various phases of the Ashland schools. The following topics will be studied by the groups and reported on at meetings held in the future — school, finance, district organization, curriculum, building and equipment, enrollment, how to attract and hold teachers, and community relations.

HONEST FISHERMEN

LAWTON, Mich. (AP)—Boat livy-man Ed Wagner puts fishermen on their honor when they rent his boats. Wagner, 73, has installed a system of slots on his garage at nearby Cedar Lake. Slot numbers correspond with those of boats. A sign directs the customer to insert his fee and help himself to a boat.

Wagner says that in two years of operating his system he has been "beat out" of only one or two fees. The price is $1 a day.

Community Program

The Ashland Community club will hold its December meeting on Monday evening, Dec. 5, at 6:30 p.m. in the basement of the Junior high school. This is men's night and a fine program has been arranged by Leo Leahy and his committee.

They have secured Langdon Robinson, president of the Faultless Milling company of Springfield, who will review an unusual period of Illinois history with excerpts from the book "Bloody Williamson." Colonel Robinson was a member of the National Guard unit that was first called when this bit of history was in the making in the early twenties.

The musical part of the program will be presented by Mary Margaret Devlin, vocal instructor, and Marjorie Tubbs, band instructor of the Franklin unit district.

The ladies of the Methodist church will serve a turkey dinner for the meeting, and reservations are to be in by Monday noon.

TRAINING SCHOOL FOR OFFICERS IN HOME BUREAU

A training school for unit Home Bureau chairmen, vice chairmen, secretaries and treasurers was held Tuesday, Nov. 29, at the Dunlap hotel.

Fifty-two attended the dinner session. Miss Marian Symphon, assistant state leader in home economics, was the instructor. Miss Symphon told the group, "When you join a Home Bureau unit, you not only join a unit organization but a county, state, national and international organization." The speaker announced the citizenship conference this year will be held in Jacksonville.

Mrs. Lyle Bates, county president, conducted the business session and extended a welcome to all present. The vice chairman for the county, Mrs. Lewis Hurrelbrink, called the roll by units.

Always preheat a drip coffee pot before brewing coffee in it.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market took a breather this week after four straight weekly advances. This was a week of backing and filling, a period of consolidation after an extended period of rising prices, according to most Wall Street observers.

Quality stocks had no large scale pressure on prices and there was no increase in volume to accompany price declines.

It was a week, however, when the market might have taken off on a traditional year-end rally. In fact, it seemed headed there Wednesday. That was the day when The Associated Press 60-stock average reached $181.50 at noon, equalling the historic high on Sept. 23, the day before President Eisenhower's heart attack. But the average couldn't stay there either for the rest of that day or for the week.

At the moment it was there, however, it had wiped out the estimated loss of 13 billion dollars in the quoted value of securities listed on the New York Stock Exchange in the sharp break of "Blue Monday," Sept. 26.

The AP average registered a decline for the week of 80 cents, closing at $180.50. This was a moderate decline, however, and three of the five trading days had rising markets.

The Wednesday volume of 2,900,000 shares was the highest in seven weeks and on that day the average was up. The week's total volume of 12,490,408 shares, although not notably large, happened to be the greatest weekly volume since 21,693,460 shares were traded in the final week of September.

The five most active issues on the American Stock Exchange this week were: C. & C. Super Corp. up $\frac{1}{2}$ at 24; on 213,200 shares; General Stores unchanged at 2; Sapphire Petroleum up $\frac{3}{4}$ at 34; Cuban American Oil off $\frac{1}{4}$ at 14; and Merrill Petroleum up $\frac{3}{4}$ at 114.

The five most active issues on the New York Stock Exchange this week were: Baldwin-Lima-Hamilton up $\frac{1}{4}$ at 147; on 217,000 shares; General Motors off $\frac{1}{4}$ at 48; Sperry Rand up $\frac{3}{4}$ at 24; Penn Texas up $\frac{1}{4}$ at 194; and Westinghouse Electric up $\frac{1}{4}$ at 574.

ALL GRAINS EXCEPT OATS FINISH HIGHER IN WEEK'S TRADING

By WILLIAM FERRIS

CHICAGO (AP) — An improvement in cash grain prices rescued the tottering grain futures market on the Board of Trade this week. With the exception of several oats contracts, all grains ended higher. The gains were far from sensational and, except in the case of corn, did not recoup all the loss of the previous week.

Wheat closed $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ higher, corn $\frac{1}{2}$ to 2 cents higher, oats $\frac{1}{2}$ higher, soybeans $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ higher and lard 8 to 35 cents a hundred pounds lower.

A comparison of cash grain prices showed better gains. No. 2 hard wheat closed at \$2.07 $\frac{1}{2}$ against \$2.02 $\frac{1}{2}$ a week ago. No. 2 yellow corn at \$1.27 $\frac{1}{2}$ against \$1.17 $\frac{1}{2}$; and No. 2 white oats at 66 cents against 64 $\frac{1}{2}$ cents.

There are not enough soybeans sold on the spot market at Chicago to make any comparison possible. Soybean oil was a little lower at 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ cents a pound, off $\frac{1}{4}$ cent. It apparently was affected by easiness in fats and oils, and particularly in lard. Lard dropped $\frac{1}{2}$ to 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ cents.

However, the highly distressed situation in soybean meal appeared to be clearing up. It was this improvement which brought some buying into soybeans. Bean meal closed the week at $49.50 a ton compared with $46.50 to $48.00 a week ago.

The rally in corn probably was the week's feature. Of course, there was a good technical reason for corn to advance. It had declined in seven of the previous nine weeks, a process which must have washed out a lot of stale long accounts.

Weather helped the corn rally along. First it was cold and then it was snowy in the Midwest. Both developments were conducive to increased farm use of feed grains.

But corn received no help from the hog market, where quotations tumbled to a new 14 year low.

Songbirds Flying South Next Fall Get Safer Passage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Songbirds migrating south next fall are going to have a safer passage. Those powerful vertical light beams in the vicinity of airports which have caused thousands of birds to crash are going to be filtered or turned off during the migrating period.

The high-powered vertical light beams are used to determine the ceiling, or range of visibility and are known as celimeters.

"The birds toll at celimeter stations in recent years has been alarming," McKay said in a news release.

"As many as 25,000 birds have perished in a single night at a single airport."

McKay said it is not known just what effect the light beam has on birds in flight.

"It is presumed that the birds are temporarily blinded by the light or that their sense of direction is blunted in some way. The effect is that the birds crash into the ceiling, or range of visibility and are killed."

For some unknown reason bird losses occur only in the fall on southward flights.

Filters have been developed which retain the visible light of the celimeter and permit only the ultraviolet or "black light" to go upwards for ceiling measurement. This black light has no effect on the migrating birds.

Carrollton Family, Homeless Since Fire, Gets Gifts

CARROLLTON — The family of Mr. and Mrs. Radius Camden, who were homeless Thursday evening and without any personal possessions as the result of a fire which destroyed their home and its contents Thursday morning, were the owners of a number of personal possessions Friday evening through the efforts of Jerry Jones, vice chairman and home service chairman of the Greene County Chapter of the American Red Cross, and Floyd Kimbro, who is treasurer of Greene county and also the county 1956 Red Cross Fund Drive chairman.

The two men began their efforts in behalf of the Camden family Thursday afternoon and by Friday evening had collected furniture, clothing, food, money and even Christmas gifts for the Camden children from the merchants and residents of the city of Carrollton. The Christmas spirit was evidenced in the business houses of Carrollton as merchants searched through their merchandise for articles of value to the unfortunate family and gave what they had. Mr. and Mrs. Camden and family are making their home with relatives until living accommodations can be found.

Prior to this demonstration of Red Cross personnel at work a meeting of the Greene County Red Cross officials was held Tuesday evening in the supervisors' room in the court house at which time Leo Mize, field representative of the Red Cross from the Springfield office, presented advance information concerning the 1956 Red Cross Fund Drive which opens in March.

SHARP DECLINE IN FARMS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau Saturday reported the number of farms in the United States shrank by 600,000 between 1950 and 1954—more than one-tenth.

In 1950, the report said, the nation had 5,382,162 farms; by 1954 the number was 4,782,393—a drop of 11.1 per cent.

This was the sharpest decline over any comparable period ever recorded by the bureau. The 1954 total was smaller than in any year since 1890.

The decline for Illinois was 10.1 per cent.

Baseball Writers Pick Yogi Berra As Most Valuable

CHICAGO (AP) — Catcher Yogi Berra of the New York Yankees today was named the American League's most valuable player for the second successive year and the third time in his career.

The honor, voted by the Baseball Writers Assn. of America, put Berra in a bracket with Jimmy Fox and Joe DiMaggio, the only other three-time American League winners.

Fox won the award in 1932 and 1933 with Philadelphia and in 1938 with Boston. DiMaggio was the winner in 1939, 1941 and 1947 with the Yankees.

Berra, who also was the MVP in 1951 and 1954, became the tenth Yankee to win the award since it was initiated in 1931 with Bob (Lefty) Grove of Philadelphia being awarded the Kenesaw Mountain Landis Trophy.

Outfielder Al Kaline of Detroit and Al Smith of Cleveland finished second and third, respectively, with Boston's Ted Williams in fourth place.

The committee named Berra on seven first-place ballots which helped him pick up 218 points. Kaline, with four firsts, had 201 points and Smith, who also had seven firsts, had 200 points.

Williams had 143 points and one first-place vote. Berra, in helping the Yanks to the American League pennant, batted .272 last season, had 37 home runs and 108 runs-batted-in. He played in 147 games and has a .293 lifetime batting average.

The only other player to win the award in two successive years besides Fox, and now Berra, was pitcher Hal Newhouse who was named MVP with Detroit in 1944 and 1945.

Aside from Berra, Kaline and Smith, Gil McDougald of the Yankees was the only player to receive more than one first place vote. McDougald received two firsts but finished twelfth.

Other first place votes went to pitcher Ray Narleski of Cleveland, outfielder Hank Bauer of the Yankees and Vic Power, Kansas City first baseman.

PERRY MOSS APPLIES FOR JOB AT NEBRASKA

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Perry Moss, 28-year-old University of Miami backfield coach, has applied for the head coaching job at the University of Nebraska.

He said Bill Orwig, Nebraska's athletic director, talked with him and advised him to send in an application for the job.

"I sent it in," said Moss. "But I'm in the same boat with a lot of others. Nothing's sure yet."

"I'm certainly interested," said Moss. "I think I'd take the job if it were offered to me. Some day in this game you've got to find out if you can coach, and there's only one way to do it—sit in the big seat yourself."

The Nebraska coaching job was left open by the resignation of Bill Classford.

Washington was admitted to the Union in November, 1880.

Stead Elected President Of Ill. Valley Conference

CARROLLTON (Special) — Ole W. Stead, superintendent of the Carrollton Community Unit School District No. 1 was elected president of the Illinois Valley Conference at an election of that group held in connection with the annual fall meeting of representatives of the Illinois Valley Conference in PHS field, Richard Hamann, coach in the local school was also elected secretary.

Championship trophies were awarded to Jerseyville and Pittsfield since they were co-champions of the 1955 football season, after which both Jerseyville and Pittsfield withdrew from membership in the Conference said withdrawal to take effect at the end of the present school year. The two schools withdrew because their increased enrollment gave them too great an advantage in athletics over schools with a small enrollment. Carrollton officials hope to continue scheduling games with both Jerseyville and Pittsfield on a non-conference basis.

Representatives of the Hardin County Unit High School were presented and asked to be admitted into membership in the Illinois Valley Conference. Mason Campbell, Roodhouse, Robert Eberle, Greenfield and Russell Wilson, Winchester were named members of a committee to investigate the advisability of admitting the Hardin school to membership and also to study the revisions of the football and basketball schedules since the Conference is now reduced to six teams.

The next regular business meeting of Illinois Valley Conference representatives will be held in Carrollton, March 19.

Willie Hartack Joins Turf Greats By Winning 100

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Jockey Willie Hartack joined notables of the turf Saturday when he rode Athena to victory in the eighth race at Tropical Park for his 400th winner of the year—the second man in racing history to accomplish the feat.

The 22-year-old native of Johnstown, Pa., was dogged by hard luck all afternoon before he could find the winner's circle. He missed in five earlier races and drew a 10-day suspension—to start Dec. 6—from the stewards.

The big Saturday crowd bet Hartack's mounts into favoritism although it was obvious they were backing the riding and not the horse. In the featured $8,825 DeSota handicap for 2-year-olds, the top weighted Decathlon went postward at 3 to 1 while Hartack's mount, Pete's Folly, was 9 to 5.

Decathlon won handsily. Hartack had seven mounts in the nine races and finished with two seconds and two thirds.

Willie Shoemaker holds the record for winners in one year with 485 in 1953.

Hartack, who stands 5-feet 3 and weighs 110, was suspended for 10 days, starting next Tuesday, for allowing his mount to drift out in Friday's sixth race. He can resume riding Dec. 16.

Souchak Still Holds Lead In Havana Golf

HAVANA (AP) — Mike Souchak of Grossinger, N. Y., posted a two-under-par 70 for the third round of the $15,000 Havana invitational golf tournament Saturday but saw his lead cut to two strokes as Ar Wall of Pocono Manor, Pa., moved into second place with a 68.

Souchak's 70 gave him a 54-hole total of 204 in the tournament, which ends Sunday with another 18-hole round. Wall's 68 was good for a 54-hole total of 206.

Billy Maxwell of Odessa, Tex., and Ed Oliver of Lemont, Ill., were tied for third with 207, followed by Bo Winger of Oklahoma City at 208. Maxwell carded a 70 in Saturday's third round, Oliver shot a 69 and Winger had a 68.

Defending champion Ed Furgol of St. Louis, who shot 73 in the first two rounds, found his eye Saturday with a 69, giving him a total of 211.

Doctors said Saturday the tests are continuing and further evaluation under close observation will be necessary before the nature of further treatment can be determined. They said the Babe will be hospitalized at least a week longer. After that, treatments probably will continue on an outpatient basis.

Leonard has been re-scheduled and will speak to the local Lions club Jan. 12, according to present plans.

Major League Will Discuss Problems At Winter Meeting

By JACK HAND
CHICAGO (AP) — The ever-controversial bonus rule, the perennial radio-TV problem of the minors and the players' demands will keep the major league owners busy next week while the baseball clubs' managers talk trade.

The American and National leagues will hold separate sessions Monday and Tuesday. A joint meeting is scheduled for Wednesday morning, although it might be moved up if the leagues dash through their private business.

Although proposed changes in the bonus rule were rejected by the minors at Columbus, they remain on the majors agenda and will be considered. The bonus rule sharply restricts movements of free agents signed for more than $4,000.

The Detroit club would toss out the rule altogether while Baltimore would like to permit bonus players to be optioned to the minors, instead of forcing them to stay on the major league roster for two years.

The majors also will discuss loosening up the June 15 midnight deadline for trading. Under one proposal, one day in July and one day in August would be set aside for trades within the same league only.

The ban on commercial radio-TV broadcasts of big league games into minor league territory as passed by the minors will be considered. It also was given slight chance of survival.

Both leagues will consider a number of requests from the players, including an increase in minimum salary from $6,000 to $7,200, and permission for players to negotiate directly with winter league teams. The players also want a voice in negotiations for a new World Series-All Star game TV contract after the current pact expires at the end of the 1956 series.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL ATTENDANCE UP DESPITE TV

NEW YORK (AP) — Saturday's millions turned out in bigger numbers to see college football games in 1955 despite television, an Associated Press survey showed Saturday. The overall national turnout increased 3.6 per cent over 1954. The figures were 13,128,636 for 593 games this fall as against 12,607,780 for 509 games a year ago.

The healthy increase reversed a trend which had showed a 1954 decline of three-tenths of a point over 1953.

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR, COACH RESIGN AT WAKE FOREST

WAKE FOREST, N. C. (AP) — Wake Forest athletic director Pat Preston and head football coach Tom Rogers resigned Saturday.

At the same time, the council was notified by Rogers that he "will not be available" for renewal of his three-year coaching contract upon its termination Dec. 31.

Big Ten Participation In Rose Bowl To Be Discussed At Meeting

By JERRY LISK

CHICAGO (AP)—The Big Ten holds its winter business meetings this week and the Rose Bowl subject may get a thorough, if informal, inspection in the wake of recent developments. Dr. Harlan H. Hatcher, big post season play criticism by one of the Rose Bowl participants, Michigan's president.

Officially, the policy-making faculty representatives and the athletic directors are supposed to be set up machinery for possible renewal of the Rose Bowl pact which expires Jan. 1, 1957.

This hinges, however, on an invitation for renewal which must be initiated by the Pacific Coast Conference.

Hoosiers Defeat Bobcats 93-74

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)— Archie Dees, Indiana's 6-foot 8 sophomore replacement for graduated All-American Don Schlundt, pumped in 21 points Saturday night in 30 minutes and the Hoosiers won their opening basketball game from Ohio University's Bobcats, 93-74.

The tall boy from Mt. Carmel, Ill., was especially effective under the basket. He and veteran Wally Choice led a first-half drive that gave Indiana a 44-34 margin at the half, hitting 14 and 12 points respectively.

Another sophomore — veteran combination, Charley Brown of Chicago and Halie Bryant, paced the Hoosiers in the second half.

Coach Branch McCracken of Indiana used 12 men and seven sophomores. Other impressive rookies included Pete Obrensky of Jeffersonville, Ind., a tall hawk, and hard-driving Jerry Thompson of South Bend, Ind.

Five Hoosiers and four of the veteran Bobcats scored in double figures. Both teams hit well from the field, Indiana 34 of 78 shots for 43.6 and Ohio U. 27 of 57 for 47.4.

Brown and Bryant wound up with 15 points apiece and Thompson and Choice with 14 apiece.

Pittsburgh Whips Michigan 75-66

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Five Pittsburgh players hit for double figures in the scoring column Saturday night as the Panthers whipped Michigan 75-66 in the basketball opener for both teams.

John Riser, 6-4 junior forward, led Pitt with 18 points. Chuck Hursh and Julius Perques each garnered 15 for the Panthers, while Joe Fenwick had 14 and Bob Larson 13.

Pitt showed a lot of poise and balance. The score would have been greater in the Panthers' favor if their foul shooting had been up to par. They connected on only 13 of 28 free shots, while Michigan hit on 18 of 21.

Ron Kramer, who starred at end football team, led the Wolverines in this past season for Michigan's 16th season. Tom Jorgenson and Henry Williams each scored 10 points for Michigan.

Michigan used a total of 12 players in an effort to find a winning combination.

Pitt took a 39-31 halftime lead and maintained its advantage the rest of the way.

All Amateur Fighters Can Continue Boxing Without Headgear

By KYLE VANCE

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—A controversy over headguards for amateur boxers, raging through the 68th annual national Amateur Athletic Union convention was knocked out Saturday with a single parliamentary blow in the final round.

The immediate result is that amateur fighters will continue to go into AAU sanctioned rings bareheaded and the armed services, which require headgear, will withhold their fighters from such bouts, except those leading to the 1956 Olympics.

Another debate by angry delegates developed before the executive committee dashed it with a decision to put off another year the adoption of gear.

On the more cordial side of the convention, the awards committee named nine nominees for the coveted Sullivan Award which goes annually to the nation's "outstanding amateur athlete of the year."

On the list are Howard "Hopalong" Cassidy, Ohio State football star; Harold Connolly, Alton, Mass., hammer thrower; Charles Darling, Bartlesville, Okla., basketball; Harrison Dillard, Cleveland, Ohio, track; Burwell Jones, Ann Arbor, Mich., swimming; Shelley Maud, McCormick, Va., swimming; Mattie McCormick, Long Beach, Calif., diving; Arnold Dowell, Pittsburgh, track, and Lon Spurrier,

OHIO'S BUCKEYES

Pace Butler 73-51

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Ohio State's Buckeyes, 15-1 finishers in the Big Ten basketball campaign last season, opened a new season Saturday night with an impressive 73-51 non-conference victory over Butler University, a winner over Wisconsin Thursday night.

Freeman, a senior for the Bucks before he became ill last mid-season, scored 24 points.

Freeman, who averaged 27.8 points in six conference games last season, hit 10 of 22 shots from the field Saturday night and added four straight free throws.

Ohio State, especially Don Kelley, out-bounded the Bulldogs and got two or three shots to Butler's one.

Butler's veteran team started fast and led at one time 17-16. Kelley hit two field goals at that point and the Bucks ran up a 42-28 margin by halftime.

The Bulldogs scored 10 points while Ohio State was getting 5, early in the second half, but never caught up.

Governor Of Georgia Burned In Effigy As Students Storm Capitol

By JIM THOMASSON

ATLANTA (AP)—Gov. Marvin Griffin's official residence and the Georgia State Capitol were stormed early Saturday by a howling mob of Georgia Tech students angered by Griffin's move to keep the Tech out of the Sugar Bowl.

The demonstrators, who several times burned Griffin in effigy, broke through a cordon of Georgia Bureau of Investigation agents and smashed their way into the Capitol.

But police lines reinforced with 25 cars of state troopers held back the crowd of more than 2,000 at the governor's mansion.

The demonstration was touched off by Griffin's request to the university system Board of Regents to bar state colleges from playing opponents having Negro players or in games where spectators are not racially segregated.

Pittsburgh has a Negro, Bobby Grier, a reserve back, on its football squad. And segregation will not be practiced in the Jan. 2 game in the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans.

However, a few hours after the student demonstration broke up, a source close to the governor, who declined to be quoted by name, said, "Georgia Tech will be allowed to play in the Sugar Bowl."

This Griffin administration source pointed out that the governor named to Regent Chairman Robert O. Arnold of Covington did not specifically mention the Sugar Bowl.

But in view of the sweeping segregation policy laid down by the governor and his call of "an immediate called meeting" of the regents to consider it, the request obviously was prompted by the forthcoming bowl game.

Arnold said Saturday he has asked the regents to meet at 11:30 a.m. Monday to study the governor's request.

But in addition to the administration spokesman's statement, there were other indications that Tech's Sugar Bowl contract will not be disturbed.

Regent Quincy Melton, editor of the Griffin Ga. News and a close friend of the governor, first declined to comment on the matter, but later apparently laid down the administration's policy line.

He suggested that Tech be allowed to carry out its Sugar Bowl contract, but that the regents adopt Griffin's suggestion for all future athletic events of state colleges.

Tech President Blake Van Leer told John Earp, Chicago NBC sports editor in a telephone interview, "I'm 60 years old and I have never broken a contract and I'm not going to break one now."

Van Leer also is chairman of the Tech Athletic Corporation, a separate agency set up by the Legislature.

Duke Wins Rugged Battle From North Carolina 6-0 Sat.

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—An unheralded sophomore halfback, Oliver Rudy, scored 35 yards for the only touchdown Saturday as Duke gained a 6-0 edge over a rugged North Carolina team that fought the Blue Devils to a standstill in a nationally televised football game.

A crowd of 34,000 saw Duke move past the North Carolina 20-yard line three other times, but the Tar Heel defense held on each occasion. North Carolina, trying to salvage something from a pitiful season of three wins and six losses, made a battle of it and had Duke hanging on at the finish.

In the closing minutes, Tar Heel tackle Jack Maulsby recovered a fumble by quarterback Dale Boyd on the Blue Devils' 18. However, Duke dug in and threw the Tar Heels back to the 26 after they had moved to the 12.

Rudy, a 197-pounder, broke around left end early in the second quarter for the only touchdown of the game. A 21-yard punt return by halfback Bob Pascale figured in setting up the score. Guard Jim Nelson's placement kick was blocked.

Houston Defeats Wyoming 26-14 In El Paso Sun Bowl

HOUSTON (AP)—The University of Houston turned a blocked punt to a fumble recovery and Kenzie Stegall's 69-yard punt return into three fourth - period touchdowns Saturday to complete its conquest of Sun Bowl football teams by defeating Wyoming, 26-14.

The quick turn of events broke a 7-7 deadlock the teams had out in the first half on a slippery field.

A crowd of 10,000 saw Houston end its season with a 6-4 record that also included a 7-0 victory over Texas Tech, Wyoming's Jan. 2 opponent in the El Paso Sun Bowl. Wyoming finished its regular campaign at 7-3.

Fullback Curley Johnson broke the 7-7 tie by plunging over from the two after guard Jim Blackston had blocked a Wyoming punt and recovered on the eight on the first play of the final period.

Seconds later guard Rod Carpenter covered a fumble on the Wyoming 23 and Stegall, a senior halfback, carried over from the six. On his long punt return, Stegall was chased out of bounds on the Wyoming 13. A penalty shoved the Cougars back, but quarterback Dimmy Dicklet passed 16 yards to fullback Don Flynn for the touchdown and a 26-7 score.

CAMPBELL LEADS EUREKA TO WIN OVER LINCOLN

EUREKA, Ill. (AP)—Eureka College opened its 1955-56 basketball season Friday night with a 73-65 triumph over Lincoln College.

Rog Ezard Sinks Pair In Final Six Seconds To Give I.C. First Win

The big clock in the Illinois College gym showed only six seconds of play remaining last night as sophomore forward Rog Ezard sank two free throws which gave the Blueboys an 85-83 Prairie College Conference basketball triumph over visiting Greenville.

Ezard, a former Jacksonville High School star but a newcomer to the I.C. lineup, was used sparingly in the game. Junior center Ed Harrell, another JHS product, was the Blueboys' big gun — he sank 10 field goals and 11 free tosses to rack up a 31 point total.

Before the season began, Greenville's Panthers were picked to win the conference championship; but last night's defeat, before a two-thirds capacity crowd in the hill-top bowl, was a blow to their aspirations — and, perhaps, an omen of championship for the Blueboys.

Later in the campaign, the two teams will meet again on the Greenville floor.

The game was fast and close all the way. Late in the first half, the Blueboys for a few moments held leads of nine and 11 points, but Greenville came back hard. Sel-dom were the two teams separated by more than four points, and in the ten hectic minutes before the final horn the lead changed hands six times.

Slim Early Leads

Through most of the first ten minutes of play the Blueboys maintained slim two and four point leads; but with 13 minutes and Greenville knotted the count 16-16, 25 seconds remaining in the half.

A minute and a quarter later the visiting Panthers took the lead for the first time, 22-20. But the Blueboys bounced right back on rallies by Harrell, Barnes and Morris to lead 29-22 midway in the first half.

With eight minutes remaining in the first half, the Blueboys built their margin up to 11 points, 33-24. For a few minutes thereafter, the I.C. lead varied between nine and 11 markers, but at the halftime horn Greenville had pulled to within six points of the pace-setters, 47-41.

Coach Al Miller's Blueboys held the upper hand throughout the first ten minutes of the second half, but Greenville's several times pulled within two points. With ten minutes remaining in the contest, the scoreboard showed I.C. on top 65-61.

Knots Count

Four minutes and 15 seconds remained on the clock when Greenville threw the contest into a 77-77 deadlock. Three minutes and 30 seconds were left when coach John Strawn's Panther's pulled into the lead, 77-77, on a free throw.

Harrell almost immediately sank a two-pointer to put the Blueboys back on top, 79-78, but with 2:50 left Greenville snatched the lead back again, 80-79.

It was Harrell from the floor again 28 seconds later, and the Millermen led 81-80. A minute and 40 seconds were left that remained as Greenville sank a charity toss to knot the count 81-81; then, with 30 seconds to play, Greenville forward Young poured one through to give the Panthers an 83-81 margin.

Harrell sank one with 10 seconds left in the game to tie it 83-83; then, with six seconds to go, the referee's whistle blew and Ezard stepped to the line to sink the two shots which nailed down the victory.

Outshoot Foes

From the floor, the Millermen outscored their foes by 12 points; but Greenville sank 35 from the charity line, ten more than I.C.

Over the game, the Blueboys connected on 30 of 76 shots from the floor for a .395 percentage; the Panthers hit 24 of 65 field goal attempts for a .369 mark.

Starting guard Dick Barnes left the I.C. lineup at halftime. A case of blood poisoning in his right arm became aggravated in the first 20 minutes of play.

The victory gave the Blueboys a 1-1 mark for the current season, and a 1-0 record in Prairie College Conference play. The Millermen next see action Wednesday at Culver-Stockton College in Canton, Mo.

In another close one, the Blueboy B squad drowned the preliminary contest, 52-48. Freshman center Carl Moore paced the I.C. attack with 20 points.

Accuse Two Grid Stars Of Beating Man In Bar Brawl

HAMILTON, Ont. (AP)—Two western Canada football stars have been accused of punching and kicking a man in a downtown bar where they had gone for a few drinks.

Halfback Johnny Bright, 25, and linebacker Ray Wilsey, 26, both with the Grey Cup champion Edmonton Eskimos, were charged Friday with common assault. They were released on $100 bail and ordered to appear in court Monday. The charges were filed after a complaint by Kenneth Aspdren, 25, who said he was punched and kicked at the Bar Thursday night. Bright said Aspdren hit him first.

Robinson At The Age Of 35 Faces Olson Friday In Title Bout

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—A confident and ready Sugar Ray Robinson tries to climax his ring comeback at the age of 35 Friday night by recapturing the middleweight title from Bobo Olson, a fighter he licked twice in his heyday.

The 15 round scrap at Chicago Stadium gives the Sugar man from Harlem the chance to get some needed cash as well as the crown he gave up three years ago when he retired. It will be home televised with Blackout and a 150-mile radius Chicago out.

Six months after Robinson, who in his prime, could be ranked among the greatest exhausted himself in the intense heat at New York in a vain attempt to lift the 7-7 tie by plunging over from the two after guard Jim Blackston had blocked a Wyoming punt and recovered on the eight on the first play of the final period.

Seconds later guard Rod Carpenter covered a fumble on the Wyoming 23 and Stegall, a senior halfback, carried over from the six. On his long punt return, Stegall was chased out of bounds on the Wyoming 13. A penalty shoved the Cougars back, but quarterback Dimmy Dicklet passed 16 yards to fullback Don Flynn for the touchdown and a 26-7 score.

Robinson's insatiable pride as a one-time champ as well as his need for ready cash determined a comeback attempt.

He started it this year by knocking out Hugo Ringdine in six rounds. Then he was over-matched and took a thorough 10 round pounding in Chicago Stadium from Tiger Jones.

After that one, experts agreed that Robinson was washed up and should quit for good.

But he picked his spots and, in order, disposed of Johnny Lombardo, Ted Olla and Garth Panter.

Then he earned a shot at Bobo by surviving a knockdown to beat contender Rocky Castellani at San Francisco last July.

GRAND CIRCUIT RACING MOVED FROM MISSOURI FAIR

COLUMBUS, Ohio (P) - Stewards of the Grand Circuit, the nation's top harness racing circuit, decided Saturday to substitute Sportsmen's Park, Chicago, in place of the Missouri State Fair at Sedalia on the circuit tour.

It appeared that many of the stewards felt the Missouri fair was "too long a haul" to and from meetings in Illinois held the week preceding, and the week following the Aug. 18-25 dates asked by the Missouri fair.

A spokesman for the stewards also reported that some horsemen had expressed dissatisfaction about shipping conditions and conditions at the fair itself.

Nearly 40 per cent of Michigan's total population resides in Wayne county.

Says Grid Game Threatens State's Segregation

JACKSON, Miss. (P) - A Mississippi citizens council leader said Saturday the state's traditional segregation will be threatened when Jones Junior College plays Comp-ton, Calif., Junior College, a team with Negroes, in the Junior Rose Bowl Dec. 10 at Pasadena, Calif.

Bill Simmons of Jackson, administrator of the Mississippi Assn. of Citizens Councils, issued a statement.

"This is a typical example of how integration starts in small doses."

"We are sure the officials at Jones Junior College will take whatever action in their best judgment will protect the vital interest of Mississippi."

The citizens councils are groups of white men dedicated to preserving segregation in all walks of Mississippi life.

Gov. Hugh White of Mississippi declined comment, saying the Junior Rose Bowl game was up to the school.

Kenneth Schulte, co-captain of the football team and president of the sophomore class, said:

"As long as the rules and junior colleges say they (Negroes) can play, we're gonna play 'em. I feel they are just another ball player and we are not worrying about who is on the team."

JHS Drops Pair In Edwardsville Tourney

Last Tuesday night Coach John Chapman's Crimsons won from Jordanville 71-57.

Bill Jordan led all Crimson scorers with 19 tallies in yesterday evening's affair.

Sports Writer Doesn't Like Sitting On Bench With Spartan Team

By MARSHALL DANN (want to lose another wallet.) Lay den muttered, whistling for play to start.

Conversation at the command post was kept to a minimum. Kous strained continually to diagram plays described to him over the phone by the prying eyes above. Talk among him, Daugherty and Bob Devaney, the third coach at the command post, also required translation.

These were some sample phrases when tension was at a height: Daugherty: "Is Masters getting him on 22?" Devaney: "That quarterback says 'add one' so they're doing it again."

Kous: "He says they're splitting with us and the double-team block broke loose on a long run into enemy territory only to be tackled somewhere short of the goal line. Exactly where, no one knew."

Daugherty: "Where are we?" Kous yelled. Daugherty: "To three different to Daugherty, 'We're on the 21' regulars when they came off the but by that time, State was on the field. 'Is that 69 cross-charging 13' on every play?" (opinions varied).

Throughout the game Daugherty often missed two or three plays a real crisis develops. Just before the kickoff, for instance, referee saw Mike Layden hurried to the bench and asked for a strip of adhesive bandage.

Three trainers rushed to medical kits to help Layden in his 50 and right in the middle of all emergency. Mike took the bandage and calmly taped it across his hip pocket, sealing it tightly.

"Forgot to do that and I don't ing."

That seat of his may be on the excitement. But if you must join him, bring along a radio so you'll know what's really happening.

Rockets Lose To Notre Dame Of Quincy 60-33

Notre Dame of Quincy proved too much for the Rocket Rockets last night as it took an easy victory, 60-33. From the opening tip-off there was never any doubt that Notre Dame's height would spell defeat for the Rockets. Rout players had to hurry their shots in order to get them away at all - and even then many were knocked down.

Both clubs were using a zone defense which proved effective for Notre Dame. Quincy Jim DeVore, who has been 7 Rout's main scorer so far this season, was covered like a blanket. Rout got all of its three points in the first quarter via free throws.

Jack Long hit two and DeVore one to end the Rout scoring in that period, which saw them trailing 10-3.

Twelve minutes had elapsed in the game before Rout got its first basket, a toss by Sargent. Coach Larry Zitkus had the Rockets change from the zone defense to a full court press in the second quarter.

Fighters Get On Waiting List For Shot At Basilio

NEW YORK (P) - Every one wants to fight Carmen Basilio since the welterweight champion has become one of boxing's "golden boys."

Young Ike Logart of Cuba got on the waiting list today behind Johnny Saxton and Vince Martinez.

The 22-year-old Cuban from Kid Gavilan's home province of Camaguey put in his bid after whipping Virgil Atkins of St. Louis in a dull duel of contenders at Madison Square Garden.

If Basilio was one of the television viewers Friday night he went to sleep worried about the latest Cuban threat. He ain't no Gavilan, yet. As for Atkins, the third ranked 147-pound contender, the less said the better.

The well-built, 26-year-old St. Louis veteran, was as sluggish as a stagnant pond. He showed absolutely no pep during the first three rounds which Logart swept easily with left hooks and combinations to the head.

Those first three rounds proved the difference. And three officials gave them all to Ike. The rest of the spiritless scrap was fairly even.

Referee Larry Napp, the American League baseball umpire who made his debut as a main event official in the Garden, and Judge Frank Forbes each voted for Logart, 6-3-1. Judge Artie Aldais scored for Logart, 7-3. The AP card had Ike the winner, 7-3.

"I want Basilio," said Logart after the fight. "He has only his one hand (pointing to his left hand.) If I can't get Basilio I'd like to fight Vince Martinez. I beat him easy."

Akins said he thought he won the fight and clamored for a refund - this time in St. Louis.

Jockey Eddie Arcaro will ride in both Florida and California this winter. He will commute by air between Hialeah and Santa Anita.

ASSISTANT FARM ADVISER

Robert K. (the K. is for Kent) Walker came to Jacksonville last week as our assistant farm adviser. He follows lively Joe Paggett, who left here to become farm adviser in Crawford county.

Walker and his wife, Patricia Price Walker of Champaign county, and their 18 months old daughter, Kathryn, now live at 349 W. Beecher avenue.

Walker's work will be primarily with the 4-H agriculture clubs and Rural Youth. Between chores he will be Farm Adviser's E. H. Garlich's handyman.

And, on top of these chores, he and Miss Eleanor Wilcox of the home economics, or Home Bureau section extension service, will promote the Farm & Home program, where married folks on the farm, the younger the better, will join a continuing plan where they will receive the benefits of specialized studies pertaining to their farm, their kitchen, their home, their life, and they, and their records, in turn will help future families by noting their failures and successes.

Walker, a left-hander at the books, grew up in DeWitt county, on a farm northeast of Clinton. His father was, and still is, a farm manager. He graduated from Clinton High school, and one of his best teachers, he says, was Truman Robinson, who graduated from Illinois College in 1930 and married Dorothy Ellis of Jacksonville.

Walker was not a football player, nor a member of the cage squad. These athletes a long time ago, acquired a habit of scaring the daylight out of most everybody that came into the precinct. They and their exploits are talked about today in Bloomington, Decatur and Lincoln.

Walker belonged to the band. He played the French horn.

After entering the U. I. College of Agriculture in 1942 he went into the army the following year and stayed there until February, 1946. Then he went back to college to graduate in 1949.

From then until last month he farmed. He fed 200 head of hogs a year and had a sheep heard of 12-150. Although he was named an outstanding 4-H member in 4-H for his sheep project he has a pretty low regard for sheep, of all types.

He had a public auction of his farm equipment last month.

"It sold pretty good," he said, "considering $11 hogs."

The entire board of the Morgan County Farm Bureau had considerable checking on Walker. What they heard, they liked.

Walker says, "I like farming. But I like people better, than livestock or plants."

This Week... At Dixon Springs

Counting Grass

When George McKibben and Lee Gard, pasture experts at the Dixon Springs Experiment Station, report that certain fertility treatments or grazing management practices either encourage or discourage a certain grass or clover, they are not guessing. Nor are their conclusions based on observation only, but on painstaking vegetative counts. That's right: they make thousands of mechanical countings of the different grasses and clovers. It's not very exciting work, but it is necessary if we are to reach sound conclusions.

During the past two weeks John Bailey and Wayne Mizell, chief stand counters, have been literally scanning the pastures blade by blade, identifying and recording each type of vegetation present. They have been taking point quadrat readings. The point quadrat is a device to make their work easier and more accurate. It is a light steel frame about 18 inches long set on four legs so that the frame clears vegetation when placed on the ground. The steel frame holds 10 equally spaced wire pointers.

Teamwork

John and Wayne work as a team, one to identify and the other to record. They carry the point quadrat into the pasture and set it down at random several hundred times. At each setting each of the 10 wire pointers is pushed down until it touches a blade of grass, a clover leaf, a weed or bare ground. The object of contact is identified and recorded. A summary of the readings gives a quick and accurate picture of each pasture field.

Usually all experimental pastures are read by point quadrat in the spring and again in the fall. Such readings are in addition to hand separations of forage species made from pasture samples cut during the summer.

If we were to ask John or Wayne why an agricultural station cannot be entirely self-supporting, they would have a really good answer.

Wintering Steer Calves

The steer wintering program on the Station is governed by the type of land. The land is rolling and the thin, shallow soil is easily lost if handled improperly. Proper handling requires that the land be covered at least 80 percent of the time with pasture and hay crops. This means that we have hay and pasture to sell. The only practical way of selling these crops is through livestock, which make most of their growth on pasture and roughage alone.

Experience has taught us that grain fed to steers, calves or yearlings during the winter will be wasted if the steers are to be grazed without grain the following summer. They will lose the fat put on during the winter when they go to pasture without extra feed.

So we try to winter them for health and normal growth without fattening. Except for the very young or light calves, a good roughage will do. A good roughage ration will give about a pound of gain a day on stocker calves, which is enough for normal growth. Steers Gain In Winter

The steer calves on the Station are now on a ration of corn silage, hay, and soybean oil meal, which will more than provide the pound-a-day gain. They are eating daily 25 pounds of silage, three to four pounds of lespedeza hay and a pound of soybean meal. Grass silage can be substituted for the corn silage; and if the grass silage is mostly clover, the soybean oil meal can be dropped from the ration. If you don't feed silage, a full feed of good clover or other legume hay will do the job. If the calves are small, and particularly if you don't feed corn silage, it would be well to add about two pounds of grain to the ration.

Says Hen Of 1956 Will Be Lighter

In almost everything, the tendency may be toward bigness — but the future has no place for a "colossal" hen. On the contrary, the chicken that lays our breakfast eggs in 1956 will weigh less than four pounds, according to Dr. Edward F. Godfrey, poultry specialist. Today laying hens range from five to seven pounds.

Speaking before the recent Northeast Poultry Producers Council meeting, Dr. Godfrey predicted that the need for breeding more efficient hens will result in smaller birds, but with the ability to lay 240 eggs annually.

The laying hen of tomorrow will have a livability of 90 per cent from chick to the end of the laying year and will produce a dozen white eggs on four pounds of feed, Dr. Godfrey believes.

SOCIAL SECURITY CONFERENCE PLANNED

Farmers and their wives are invited to attend an extension conference on social security to be held at 1 p.m. Wednesday at Farm Bureau hall.

H. J. Vasconcellos, fieldman for the agency, will be the speaker.

A similar meeting will be held in Winchester on Tuesday Dec. 6. Raymond Flinn will be the speaker.

STRANGE SHRIMP

The apus, a little desert shrimp with the appearance of a miniature horseshoe crab, breathes through its feet, swims upside down, and lives only 40 days after a two-year hatching period.

'Protective Milk' Called Possibility

The possibility of producing milk containing antibodies to fight human diseases has been announced by two University of Minnesota researchers. But long before this is realized, it is safe to predict that "protective milk" will be used in veterinary medicine.

Dr. William E. Peterson and Dr. Berry Campbell have cautioned that "considerable work remains to be done before protective milk can be available for public use." The work referred to undoubtedly will be done with animals and the farmer may well find milk available for immunizing his cows against bangs, for example, long before tests are completed on milk for measles, small pox and diphtheria in human beings.

Dr. Peterson and Dr. Campbell injected virus and bacterial vaccines into the cow's udder and learned that the cow manufactures large quantities of the antibodies and discharges them into the milk.

Illinois Farmers Outlook Letter

LIVESTOCK OUTLOOK FOR NEXT YEAR

Consumer buying power, now 7 percent greater than it was one year ago, will continue strong in 1956. As usual, prospects for the last half-year are less clear than those for the first half. Consumer demand for beef will hold up well throughout the year. Demand for pork, which has been declining in the past few years, may level off in the last half of the year.

Total meat output, which has climbed one-fifth in the past four years, is expected to stay about the same in 1956.

BEEF CATTLE Beef output has jumped one-half in the last four years. Supplies could increase again next year, but they seem more likely to decrease slightly. The slight decrease is expected because the rather heavy slaughter in 1955 has reduced numbers of cows and steers on farms.

The supply of beef dropped to a low of 56 pounds per person in 1951 and then rose to a new record high of 81 pounds this year. In 1956 the supply is likely to slip back to around 78 pounds per person. This level would be greater than that of any year on record except 1954 and 1955.

The supply of veal dropped to 6.6 pounds per person in 1951 and jumped to 9.9 pounds in 1954. It then eased off to about 9.6 pounds per person this year and is expected to be down to 9.0 pounds in 1956. The seasonal pattern of cattle prices will be much different in 1956 from that of this year, but average prices for the year may be about the same.

We expect large marketings of fat cattle to continue into the first few weeks of the new year. The late winter should bring some easing of market receipts and some contrasensational advance in top prices. On the other hand, it is very unlikely that prices will approach the unusually high levels of early 1955. By early summer top prices may begin to climb, and the average may be considerably higher in the last half of 1956 than in the last half of the year.

HOGS. Hog production reached a peacetime high in 1951, was cut back one-fourth in 1952 and '53, and has increased one-fourth in 1954 and '55. It is expected to level off in 1956, beginning with the spring pig crop. Low prices for hogs during recent weeks have discouraged many producers from planning any further increase in production.

The supply of pork rose to 71 pounds per person in 1952 and then dropped for two years to only 60 pounds in 1954. The figure is about 66 pounds this year and will probably be about 67 pounds in 1956. Sixty-seven pounds would be just about equal to the 10-year average. While present and prospective supplies of pork are no greater than average, we should remember that in 1953 and 1954 beef and poultry moved into the market vacated by previous large pork supplies.

The two-year decline in hog prices may end in 1956. We expect prices to be more stable in the year ahead than they have been in 1955, and next fall they may be above recent low levels.

A large part of the 1955 spring pig crop was moved in October and November. Weekly receipts are near their peak for this season. Fewer hogs are being held back this year than last. Hogs are also being marketed at lighter weights. Some easing of supplies is likely in December, and prices should show some recovery by January. The winter average may be around $14.00, or $2.00 above recent lows and $2.00 below last winter's average. Prices will continue under year-before levels until about mid-summer, or until the 1956 fall pig crop is sold. This fall pig crop is about 10 percent larger than that of a year ago, and a record for peacetime years.

If there is no substantial increase in the 1956 spring pig crop, hog prices could average moderately higher in the last half of 1956 than in the last half of 1955.

Rural Morgan Spurs Health Drive

The dinner that precedes the annual drive for new members in the Morgan County Health Improvement association was held Thursday evening at Central Christian church. There was only a small group of workers present; the icy roads kept most of them at home.

Principals at the meeting are shown above. From left, they are Chester A. Thomason, president of the association; Ivan E. Parett, IAA secretary of public relations; and Melvin A. Sparland, agricultural field representative of the Blue Cross program.

The local HIA is the framework for rural subscription to Blue Cross, medical insurance, and Blue Shield, surgical insurance. The workers will strive during the next 15 days to build the membership up to one-half of the rural residents in the county eligible for the two plans.

Parett, former farm adviser in Morgan county, discussed how farm people can provide hospital and medical care "for ourselves, without resorting to federal aid." Other speakers included John Spencer of Passavant hospital, Mrs. Lillian Brown of Our Saviour's and Dr. Albert F. Fricke, president of the Morgan County Medical society. All approved of health insurance, not only from the standpoint of the hospital's treasury but from "the welfare of the patient, who responds so much better to medical treatment if he is financially secure."

Sparland followed Parett to explain what the two medical plans offer, and what they don't include. An accordion trio, Marjorie Prather, Becky DePrates and Norma Standish, played several church selections. The invocation was pronounced by Rev. Gerald Miller, minister of Central Christian church.

A Tribute To Our School Band

As we sit and fondly listen to our aggregation of teenagers playing our national anthem or even a popular tune, we are impressed with the fact that these youngsters reflect the spirit of tomorrow's leadership and Americanism. Patiently these boys and girls practice on their various instruments and, under the expert guidance of their exacting leader, become real musicians ready to give any football game or basketball game or school function the verve that only a fine band can provide. We salute these outstanding young Americans!

LABOR'S NEW RESPONSIBILITY

With the nation's two great labor organizations, the AFL and CIO, merged into one huge federation, Big Labor is entering a new era in which it faces both a beckoning opportunity and a rising responsibility.

Now 15,400,000 strong, the united organization obviously will have enhanced power and prestige. It will be able to speak in more forceful tones in its dealings with the business community, in its forays into politics, and in the councils of international labor.

Having this greater power, it may act as a stronger magnet than the two separate organizations did to the hundreds of independent unions which have chosen to remain outside the AFL or CIO. Likewise, it may exert greater pulling power on millions of unorganized workers.

In the past interfederation raiding has been a great source of trouble in the labor movement. Presumably, this sort of thing will now largely disappear and the combined groups can concentrate on more fruitful objectives.

They themselves believe their greater strength gives them an unparalleled chance to work for higher living standards among the nation's workers. This is indeed a worthy goal, and the extent to which the new federation realizes it may be the single best measure of its ultimate effectiveness.

But clearly this great power and the opportunity it brings are inseparable from a higher sense of responsibility. The men who will lead the new organization are taking on burdens the like of which they have never known before.

Big as they are, they still represent less than 25 percent of the country's 65-million-man labor force. They cannot in fairness press the interests of their workers at the expense of other workers or of the community at large.

If they do, they will bring down the wrath of other groups on their heads, and cost their workers more than they can get for them.

Moreover, they must at all times be careful not to push their demands beyond the reasonable capacity of the economy to absorb them. The result of excessive pressure can only be to squeeze the economy dry and cripple its ability to serve them and every other segment of the nation.

For another thing, labor must cast its political weight with caution. Any attempt to take over a political party or place its stamp unmistakably on a party seems likely to backfire, and again to draw the wrath of others. Labor by now ought to have seen enough of how the public reacts to extremes of political action on its part.

If the men at the helm of the new federation can wield their combined strength thus responsibly, they should indeed preside over the winning of fresh awards for America's workingmen. Gained in that way, those rewards would benefit us all.

COVERUP FOR SLUMS

It has been rather widely assumed that Moscow's sharp criticism of Alexander Vlasov, Soviet architect, during his American tour has doomed him to be a sad fate upon his return. We might be surprised. But then perhaps we shall never know what happens to him.

Moscow blames Vlasov and other architects for huge amounts spent in unusual but unnecessary adornment of postwar Russian buildings. The implication is that if this money had not been so foolishly spent it could have been devoted to alleviating the now chronic Soviet housing shortage.

The truth is the housing lack is perhaps the single most striking evidence of the Kremlin's neglect of its ordinary citizenry. The housing situation is in plain fact worse than it was under the czars. Russian cities are vast slums. Resources that should have been poured into housing have gone to guns and planes and other military devices.

Pointing the finger at Vlasov and others is a standard, transparent Kremlin maneuver designed to shift the blame from the Soviet leadership, where it belongs. It is doubtful if it will fool anyone, least of all the millions of Russians who dwell in hovels because of long Kremlin indifference to their plight.

TO CUT—OR BALANCE?

The political wiseacres expect Congress to cut taxes in the 1956 election year whether the Treasury's figures seem to justify it or not. About all that can be said right now is that the budget indications are a little closer than a while ago to justifying such action.

Budget Director Rowland Hughes, in a report to President Eisenhower, said that the government hopes to balance the federal budget both in the present fiscal year (ending next June 30) and the following one.

The explanation comes from the continuing boom, which has sent tax receipts, especially from corporations, soaring to unexpected levels.

The improved tax situation is good news, naturally. We haven't had many balanced budgets since the late 1920's.

A question arises here. If a tax cut is to be voted, will the lawmakers so limit it as to keep the budget in balance? Or will they slash on such a scale as to plunge the nation right back into deficit financing?

Everyone likes tax relief. But it would also be nice, for a change, to see a surplus in being long enough to make a few dents in the whopping federal debt. Reducing the debt has become the forgotten project of the century.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—Some kind of federal aid for education—probably for building public schools—seems certain in 1956. There are practical and political reasons for thinking so.

1. Schools are needed and the states by themselves are not building them.

2. The President's White House Conference on education Thursday night approved by a 2-1 margin the idea of federal aid for public schools.

3. President Eisenhower's secretary of health, education and welfare, Marion B. Folsom, made it clear last night the administration would push such a program.

4. The Democrats' Senate leader, Lyndon Johnson of Texas, already has promised that federal aid for school construction would be a primary goal of his party in the Senate.

5. Both parties have a sound political reason to vote federal aid: the conference action demonstrated wide public support for it and 1956 is a big election year.

The conference, which brought between 1,800 and 2,000 men and women here from all 48 states, surprised the skeptics by its action Thursday night.

Before the conference opened Monday there was widespread doubt any solid agreement could come from so many people with so many different backgrounds. Explosions, perhaps enough to wreck the conference, would not have been unexpected.

The opposite happened. In some of its other reports the conference was wishy-washy, issued platitudes, and overworked the obvious. Not last night's report on federal aid. It was terse, positive, and faced the issue.

Folsom, making one of the final speeches, carefully pointed out he had spoken with Eisenhower yesterday and added: "The federal government must help raise some of the funds for the buildings."

He went further than that a moment later by making it clear the administration was already planning to ask Congress to vote federal aid, for he said that "in designing a federal proposal we are bearing in mind" certain principles.

One of them was that: "Federal assistance, while nationwide in scope, benefiting all states, should be distributed according to need." This was not a new idea. It had been batted around before in Congress, which never could make up its mind on federal aid at all.

But Folsom and the administration were right in step with the conference's thinking. Its report was finished and available a few hours before Folsom made the same point as the conference: "All states should be eligible for federal funds but... only on the basis of demonstrated needs."

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The comeback star of the year is a 27-year-old onetime has-been named Mickey Mouse.

The sky rodent has captured a new generation, this time as host of the weekday ABC TV hour, the Mickey Mouse Club.

Mickey never had it so good. His outside ears are popping up on the heads of kids all over the land; they're buying the mouse hats (29 to 98 cents) at the rate of 24,000 a day. (Whatever happened to conks?) Two hundred other pieces of merchandise connected with the club are being sold, and more are added daily.

The mouse has captured daytime ratings honors, snowing under his major opponents, veterans Howdy Doody and Pinky Lee. A recent survey gave the club a 76 per cent advantage over the opposition in the East.

Judging from the reaction at Walt Disney's studio, parents have mixed feelings about the show:

1. They are delighted to have a show that doesn't insult their children's intelligence.

2. They are appalled by the amount of commercials.

FAMILY COLLEGE
BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP)—All 12 children of the late Raymond Williamson have attended college. 11 of them at Bowling Green State University. They say they like Bowling Green because Aunt Florence is on the faculty.

Aunt Florence is Dr. Florence J. Williamson, who has taught there since 1926.

Of the eight boys and four girls, the only one who missed Bowling Green is Robert, 24. He attended Cedarville College until his father's death in 1950 when he went home to manage the family farm.

Of the 11, four have graduated from Bowling Green. Others quit to get married, transferred or are still attending. Since 1934, a member or members of the family have been enrolled except for the years 1943 and 1950. In those years, Aunt Florence held the tradition alone.

In Politics, Dark Glasses Are Frequently Helpful

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—The old saw about politics making strange bedfellows was never better illustrated than in the endorsement by Rep. Francis Walter (D-Pa.) of New York's Gov. Averell Harriman as Democratic presidential nominee.

Representative Walter is of course best known as co-author of the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act. He is a stout fighter against its amendment in any form.

Governor Harriman is one of the many Democrats who have loudly criticized the McCarran-Walter Act. He has demanded many times that it be modified.

In a New York speech before a general hundred Jewish leaders last December, the then-Governor-elect Harriman called the law a "stupid blunder."

He said it "throws immigrants, who arrive here in search of freedom and opportunity, into jail alongside thieves and hoodlums, while immigration papers are being inspected and straightened out."

LAST MARCH, before the Nationalities Division of the Democratic National Committee, Governor Harriman criticized the Republicans for having done nothing to amend the law, in spite of President Eisenhower's campaign promises to do so, two and a half years before.

As recently as last Columbus Day, Governor Harriman took another poke. Speaking to Italians this time he speculated on the ten-year, red tape delay faced by any "genius from Genoa" who today might try to get into America under the quota system, without a sponsor.

Harriman has been violently critical of the emergency refugee relief program as too small and too slow.

When Edward J. Corsi was fired by the State Department as advisor on the refugee program, Governor Harriman promptly put him on the New York State Committee on Refugees. Corsi and Walter are of course anathema to each other.

Letters Highlight Chief Complaints Against Men

Memo to men:
Could your wife have written any one of the following letters received in this week's mail?

Could she have written the letter that said: "In the first years of marriage a couple generally continues some of the activities of their courtship, a few shows, a dance now and then, a bit of visiting, some entertaining, a social life that includes both HIM and HER. But all too soon with his bowling club, his men's service club, his business or profession there's no time for HER or the children."

Or could your wife have written the letter that begins: "If my husband would just once in a while notice what I've done around the house, or tell me I'm a good mother, or brag about my cooking—just anything to make me feel noticed and needed and appreciated. I really try to build up his ego. Why doesn't he ever think mine needs a boost, too?"

TABLE MANNERS AND TALKING THINGS OVER
Or could your wife have sent still another letter—the one that said: "My husband is a good man and I love him, but his table manners are so poor I am embarrassed when we have guests. I know he didn't have much of a chance when he was a kid growing up, but don't you think a man would notice such things and try to improve?"

Would it have been possible for your wife to sit down and write this letter to a stranger: "I know we are drifting apart but I just can't talk things over with my husband. He calls any kind of talk 'nagging.' If we could just talk honestly and try to see each other's point of view I know things would be better. But how can you get a man to talk to you?"

Somebody's wife wrote each of those letters. Could any of them have been written by your wife? Just wondering may help you to know her a little better and to know yourself a little better.

Cranberries Give Tangy Flavor to This Dressing

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Of course, the holiday season sends us looking for new and better stuffings. But what about a stuffing made especially for serving with cold turkey or cold chicken next day? It's a delicious suggestion.

Or, if you have a chafing dish serve a turkey or chicken curry or creamed turkey right at the table with the stuffing turned out on a pretty platter. Salad or relishes will complete the meal to the satisfaction of all.

Cranberry Stuffing
Two cups ground cranberries, 1 cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 8 cups coarse bread crumbs, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon sage, 2 teaspoons thyme, 1/3 cup chopped celery, 3 tablespoons minced parsley.

In a big saucepan, cook cranberries in butter for 5 minutes. Stir in sugar. Add remaining ingredients and blend thoroughly. Press into a greased 2-quart casserole. Bake at 350 degrees F. (moderate oven) about 35 minutes. Turn out on serving plate. Garnish as desired.

Chicken-Rice Stuffing
(Makes 5 cups stuffing or enough for a 4-5 pound bird)

Eight cups dry bread cubes, 1 small onion, chopped; 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning, 1 teaspoon salt, dash black pepper, 1 cup melted butter or margarine, 1 can (11 cups) condensed cream of chicken soup.

Combine bread cubes, onion, seasonings and butter. Stir soup until smooth; pour over bread cubes and mix lightly. Note: stuffing may also be baked in a 1 1/2-quart casserole in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 45 minutes.

MONDAY'S DINNER: Cold pork (from Sunday), cranberry stuffing, condiments, scalloped potatoes and onions, buttered spinach, rye bread, butter or margarine, ginger pears, instant mix devil's food cake, coffee, tea, milk.

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

Followers of Jesus

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

An interesting exercise for Bible readers, and often a very enlightening one for serious students, is to take a key word and follow all its usages and references in the Old and New Testaments with a good concordance.

Many Bibles contain a concordance in the "helps" section, but these lack the completeness of such larger and well-known concordances as Cruden's and Young's. For instance, the word "earth," which occupies about five inches in the concordance section of Bagster's Comprehensive Helps, perhaps the best of bound-in Bible helps, has nearly three large three-column pages in Young's Concordance.

This Concordance, so far as I know, is the best that has ever been compiled. Dr. Young was a Scotch scholar who compiled it away back in 1870. My copy of the immense book of over eleven hundred pages is the revised edition, published by Dodd, Mead Co., New York, in 1922. I don't know whether it is still available, except in some secondhand bookstores, but I advise anyone who can get hold of a copy not to miss it. I value it next to the Bible itself.

A distinctive feature is that it not only gives every reference for an English word in the Bible, but shows where the word has been translated from the original Hebrew or Greek, and distinguishes between different meanings of the same word.

What set me off on this was that as I began to write on following Jesus I was impressed with the great number of references for the word "follow"—about a full page in Young's. About half were in the Old Testament and half in the New.

The meaning was not always the same. Sometimes the word "follow" was used in the sense of following after, or pursuing. But the meaning that I had particularly in mind was that in the sense of discipleship, following a teacher, leader, or way of life.

When Jesus called for disciples to follow Him, He was speaking in language familiar to Judaism and the Old Testament. The chief reference there is to "following the Lord" (See such passages as Numbers 32:12). There are references to following individuals (See Judges 9:3; 1 Kings 12:20, etc.); and both in the Old and New Testament are references to following after righteousness (Isaiah 51:1; Romans 9:30, 31).

But it is in the Gospel that the chief interest and importance lies, in what Jesus said concerning following. The first apostolic discipleship began as Jesus said to two fishermen: "Follow Me, and I will make you fishers of men." These were Peter and Andrew.

To follow Jesus did not mean the same thing to all. To some it was a call to the inner circle of close companionship.

To others who wanted to share that intimate following, Jesus said in effect, not "Follow," but "Go."

I have often thought that the hardest task that Jesus gave was to the Gadarene maniac who He healed (Mark 5). To this grateful soul, who longed to be with Him, Jesus said, "Go home to thy friends and tell them what great things the Lord hath done for thee."

Even under the most favorable circumstances it is often harder to live the Gospel than it is to be out on some alluring religious adventure. It is often more difficult to be a follower than it is to be a leader.

Be sure to keep your list to send to us when we ask you for it. I'm sure that the summer riders on the Bandwagon had a lot of fun.

Be sure to join the winter-riders gang and be ready to toot your horn next March.

Creatures Of The Ocean

MORAY EELS

By Ray Broekel

One of the creatures of the ocean that is most feared by divers is the moray eel. It is extremely vicious, and has a mouthful of teeth that can rip quite a large chunk out of a person.

Moray eels are found in warm ocean waters all over the world. They are coastal fishes, that is, they stay in close to shore.

Their favorite hang-out is in a coral reef where they coil themselves in the openings among the coral. Here they will wait patiently until prey of some sort swims by.

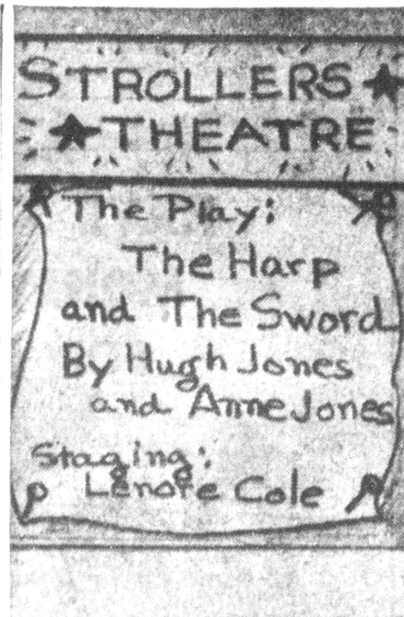

Then the snake-like moray springs into action and pursues its food.

Largest 10 Feet Long
Morays of which there are many species, or kinds, reach different lengths according to the species. The largest known ones are longer than ten feet. Others are around six feet.

From growth records of young morays, there is evidence that one kind should grow into an adult eel about sixty feet long! So far no adults of this species have been seen or captured.

Morays have a body shape very similar to that of a snake. They swim through the water just as a land snake crawls on land. That is, they weave their bodies back and forth which causes them to move.

An adult eel's body is approximately the thickness of the legs of a grown person. This will naturally depend upon the kind of eel.

LITTLE DOWNIE

By Emma Mae Leonhard

Little Downie is our little white and black woodpecker, called Downie Woodpecker. There is another woodpecker that looks exactly like Little Downie, but it is almost three inches longer and has a bill which is much larger; he might be called our Little Downie's Big Brother.

Both of them are white-backed, the only woodpeckers which we have that show white backs when they fly as well as when they are sitting. Otherwise they are checkered and spotted with black and white. On the back of the male bird's head there is a small red dot or patch, which glows like a ruby.

You will see the Downie Woodpecker in both open woods, and in orchards and gardens, even in a town or city. Although we don't have too much trouble finding him, there aren't many Little Downies.

Hear That "Pick?"

He gives himself away with his sharp call that sounds like "pick!" As he flies from tree to tree, he will utter the same "pick" sound over and over a dozen or more times, like a rapid whinny of notes that drop in pitch at the end.

The Hairy Woodpecker, Downie's Big Brother, says "peck" and also sends out a rapid series of notes which seem to rattle out and drop in pitch at the end. Both woodpeckers' real "song" is their drumming on a dead tree with their bills.

Maybe we could call them drummers in a band. Any way, if you listen, you can't fail to locate Little Downie; he'll make himself heard.

Likes Suet

And what a pleasant fellow he is in the winter time! Just fasten some suet upon a tree trunk or hang it in a net bag or wooden container. Little Downie will call upon you regularly each day.

Big Brother might call occasionally also. Don't use a metal container for the suet unless you have covered it with melted paraffin, since Little Downie, or any other bird, might touch it with his eye in the very cold weather and pull his eye out when it immediately freezes to the metal.

When he flies in for his free meal at your bird feeder, he usually stops first on a branch or trunk of a nearby tree, hitches himself up the cold trunk, and braces himself with his stiff tail feathers while he appears to be looking for spider eggs, cocoons, or something to eat hidden under the bark.

He ought to know that he has cleaned that away before, as he has looked the same place over many times each day. Maybe he wants to know that he isn't just a tramp, but prefers to work for his meal.

Soon he'll quietly fly over to the suet, brace himself there with his stiff tail, and eat politely.

When he has enough to eat, he flies off to his winter bed in a tree. Here he has a special hole where he can sleep cozily during the cold winter hours.

WORK AND PLAY

My school is important to me and to lots of others. We work and play together.

Our teacher helps us learn many important things. Reading, writing, and arithmetic are few of these things. These things will be useful when we are older and want to get a job.

TEACHERS WORK TOO

I like my school because my teachers are trying to help us read, write, and do many other things. Our teachers have to work and study, too, so that they can help us more.

GOOD SPORTS

Schools are to help children to be good citizens. School helps children to be good sports and to share with others.

School is the best place for children to grow up. It helps them to read, write, and do problems.

HAPPIEST MONTH

By Sue Schaeffer Corey

And now we come to December the happiest month of all the year! To all you December children, a very special greeting!

Sometimes the Great Day in this month seems to take away from the excitement of your own special day. One boy, whose birthday fell on the twenty second, used to get presents on that day marked. "Do not open 'til Christmas!"

"I hope this will not happen to any of you and that you'll be glad that this is 'your month.'"

Randall Steven Tendick, 827 N. Diamond, Nov. 27, 4 years, (Randall was a bit late for November so let's let him slip in here.)

You Share December With — Many important people share this month with you. Gilbert Stuart was born on the third in 1755. He painted about forty portraits of George Washington.

Put Wooden Shoes Out — On the Eve of this Feast day, in Holland and Belgium, and parts of Germany, boys and girls put out their wooden shoes filled with grain for the good Saint's horse. Next morning, the shoes are found filled with sweets and toys. Now here is something you would not all like. With St. Nicholas comes a man dressed in black. From a sack which he carries, he takes switches or small whips for the bad children!

The day after festival the great Christmas markets open throughout Europe. At these fairs you can buy all the extra things for the holidays. Children begin to make decorations. Christmas is then usually a purely religious day.

CHRISTMAS SERIAL

Merry Are The Bells

By Hugh Jones

Merry are the bells,
And merry would they ring.
Merry was myself,
And merry could I sing;
With a merry ding-dong,
Happy, gay, and free,
And a merry sing-song,
Happy let us be!

—Mother Goose—

This is a Christmas serial and not mere oatmeal, so higgely-hi, higgeli-ho, and away we go!

My name is Christopher O. What's that again? Yes, that's right; I said my last name was O, spelt O, with just one o. You've probably heard people laugh and say, "O-ho, ho." Well you didn't know it, but that "O" stands for Christopher O; that's me!

I've got a story I think you might like. If you'll let me just curl up on the mantle of your fireplace (or make-believe fireplace), I'll tell you about the time that I, Christopher O, was in Chicago.

You probably haven't heard of Chicago, but it's quite a nice little city of four million. Four million what? People! What'd you think, penguins? They have a shining white building there called the Wrigley building, a department store with a wonderful toy department, and oh, yes, the Smith family.

Smith Family

The Smith family consists of the mother—Margaret, the father—Jack, and last, but by no means least: Louise, Anne, John, and Theodore. Mother Margaret is a very motherly model of a mother; she's patient, kind, and good-humored.

Father Jack is a fatherly sort of father. Of course he's not home during day, but when he comes home, the house is in a continual uproar of gay mischief. One is never quite sure whether he will see father Jack acting as a horse with three year old Louise as a daring rider, or as Theodore Roosevelt leading the attack on San Juan Hill with his sturdy band of "Rough-Riders"; Louise, Anne, John, and Theodore.

Louise Is Three

Louise is three years old and likes to think of younger children as "babies" not worth bothering with, and I think you might agree that Louise is quite "grown-up" except for certain times, such as when she insisted for a period of two weeks, that she was a young colt, and padded through the house on her hands and knees looking for grazing land.

Anne—whose is seven—is called "The Listener" of the family because she likes to stand before the window in the front room for hours on end and watch people and cars as they go by. She likes to watch and think about people and things, all kinds of people and things.

John The Joker

John—age ten—is called "Pardner" and "Joker" because he fancies himself the king of the cowboys. John likes a good joke, but otherwise he's a tight-lipped cowboy who says, "Yup," and "Nope."

Theodore is nine and is called "Little Caesar" because he considers himself one of the best generals on Avers Avenue (his street). His favorite past-time is playing general, and more than once he has been known to have led the "Rough-Riders" (without father) on successful army raids against the kitchen of the Smith house, carrying off rich prizes of war such as cookies, cake, and sometimes even part of a pie.

Strange Thing

It was just four weeks before Christmas when a strange thing happened in the Smith house. Mother and father Smith were visiting a neighbor around the corner and the four children were alone in the house.

Louise was taking her afternoon nap upstairs, John and Theodore were playing "war-games" in the den on the second floor, and Anne was lying on the floor in the front room lost in a world of her own.

Anne was peering intently at a big blue glass ornament on the Christmas tree when all of a sudden a funny little face looked back at her. Funny thing was it wasn't her face, and funnier still, it was a little red face.

Next week I'll tell you more about the mysterious face that Anne saw.

Susan Has Gay Birthday Party With Balloons

A party for Susan Jean Wald was held at her home on her 3rd birthday, Tuesday, Nov. 15, from 3:00 to 4:30. Susan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. D. Wald, 126 Diamond Court.

Her Sunday School class and teachers were invited from the First Baptist Church.

Susan entertained her friends in her basement play room until time for refreshments.

Two half moon tables were decorated with white crepe paper, Mickey Mouse happy birthday glasses and napkins, nut-cups, party hats and balloons.

The center piece for each table was a round pink birthday cake with three candles. Birthday cake, ice cream and milk was served on party plates.

Assisting Susan's mother in serving refreshments were Mrs. Mrs. Wayne Herrin, Mrs. Sam Sorenson and Mrs. Les Brinegar.

After refreshments, the guest of honor opened her many lovely gifts, assisted by her father.

Attending the party were her father and brother Billy, her Sunday School teachers Mrs. H. E. Dobson and Mrs. Farrell Patterson, Carol Glossoop and her mother and baby brother, Dianne Jones and mother, Pam Foster and her mother and sister Susan, Janet Perkins and mother, Mark Herbin and mother, Mark and Greg Sereno and mother, Jackie Kay Elliott and her aunt, Mary Ellen McKean, Jim Morris and mother, Betty Brinegar, Ricky and Sherri and Randy Lowe, and Mrs. Ray Linn.

Since Susan's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Dobbs, were unable to attend, she is being entertained at their home Thursday evening.

SECRETARY NEEDS SCHOOL

I think that schools are important because if you didn't go to school you wouldn't know how to write or spell. Maybe you would like to be a secretary when you grow up. If you didn't know how to spell you couldn't type. If you didn't know how to write you couldn't write letters or sign your name.

When you grow up you will see why you had to go to school. School is for your own good.

Children Of Today To Cure Sick Of Tomorrow

Today millions of children go to public schools in America. Therefore we need schools and teachers.

One of the reasons our parents pay taxes is because of this great need. They pay for our building, furnishings, and teachers.

Someone might ask why we have to have school if it just adds to our taxes. If we didn't have schools what would America be like?

No one would know anything and new things wouldn't be invented.

If people got sick they might die because no one would know how to cure them.

Someone might also ask why we need all the equipment we use. We need it to illustrate problems more clearly so students may learn better and understand things more readily.

The more you put into your education the more you get out of it. Cathleen Alice Crawford

Appropriate remarks of appreciation were made by the retiring officers and the worthy matron and worthy patron and also Mrs. Maxey. Gifts from the chapter were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Gregory. Mrs. Gregory also presented a traveling gavel to Mrs. Whorton and gave a short history of the gavel. Refreshments of a three tiered cake decorated with yellow roses and topped with a blue star were served with coffee and tea, nuts and mints from a beautiful tea table decorated in keeping with the colors of the evening, gold and blue. Blue napkins, printed in gold with the names, Jerry and Norris, were used.

Cadillac

Strangers—with a Mutual Friend!

Anyone who owns and drives a Cadillac will find this a familiar scene.

For it is not at all unusual for Cadillac owners to salute one another as they pass on the highway . . . or to exchange approving nods as they wait for the traffic light to change.

Cadillac owners, you see, know that they have at least one mutual friend . . . in the Cadillac car.

And the chances are that if these two motorists were to meet, they would find they had a great deal more in common than just their affection for the "car of cars."

For Cadillac owners, taking them by and large, are people who share a keen appreciation for the finer things in life.

And, generally speaking, they are people of unusual practical wisdom . . . who have found in Cadillac the most economical means to the finest end in motordom.

They have learned, for instance, how reasonable a Cadillac can be insofar as original cost is concerned—actually within a few dollars of many "medium-priced" cars.

They have seen for themselves how economical a Cadillac is to operate through the miles . . . and how wonderfully dependable it is through the months and through the years.

And they have savored that final reward for choosing the "car of cars"—Cadillac's extraordinary resale value.

Perhaps, in view of these remarkable facts, the time has come for you to meet this wonderful friend of America's most demanding motorists.

We'll be delighted to introduce you at any time you find convenient—and to supervise a personal demonstration on the highway.

Credit Light Portable Oxygen Unit With Saving More Lives

By LOU BLACK

MILFORD, Conn. — Two years ago, while at a social event, Jack Bray saw a relative collapse and die while waiting for an ambulance crew to arrive with a heavy oxygen unit.

Later, Bray, 52, learned from a doctor that had a lighter portable oxygen unit been handy, it might have saved the victim's life.

"I decided right then and there to drop everything else and do something about it," says Bray.

He did.

Working with an engineer, Bray has produced a portable unit which he says provides up to one hour of oxygen at seven liters per minutes. The unit includes a variable flow regulator, two lightweight cylinders and two disposable masks.

With a leatherette case the complete unit weighs only 17 pounds. It apparently has caught on among doctors, hospitals, police, fire and industrial welfare departments and for emergency use in homes, on ships, trains and buses, according to Bray, who has opened a small factory here to make it commercially.

Since going into production two years ago, Bray's biggest satisfaction has come, he says, from what people have told him about the "new lease on life" they have experienced as a result of the new oxygen unit.

Mrs. Phyllis Copertino, day head nurse at Bassick Mfg. Co., Bridgeport, says she has had two occasions to use a Bray unit since the company acquired one two months ago. Two employees suffered heart attacks. Each time, she says, there was a possibility that the attack might have been fatal if the unit had not been available.

Officer John Lutters of the Orange police, which has had a unit about six months, says the department has had only one occasion to use it so far, but "it's like a fire extinguisher — a good thing to have around when you need it."

Frank McDonnell, president of a surgical supply firm in New Haven says the unit is an especially popular item among doctors in small towns which have no hospitals because not having one on hand "often means death."

Bray says he can produce 10,000 units a year without expanding. He is now producing at a rate of 1,500 a year, but production has been going up steadily since he switched from a one-cylinder to a two-cylinder unit nine months ago.

Tests have shown, he says, that the unit can be "on the victim" and in action in only seven seconds at a time when seconds count.

Miss Wilkerson Hostess To Society At Roodhouse

ROODHOUSE—Miss Dorothy Wilkerson was hostess to the Deltas at a dessert bridge party held at her home Wednesday night. Four tables were at play with prizes awarded to Mesdames William M. Gilmore and George Reynolds. During the business session conducted by the president, Mrs. James H. Orr, it was decided to hold the Christmas party at the Hilltop Supper club Dec. 14, in the evening.

Woman's Club Meets
Mrs. Albert Powers, program chairman of the Roodhouse Woman's Club, presented the Thursday afternoon program, "The Magic Christmas Stocking."
Arranged by the committee was an old-fashioned fireplace from which hung a large red stocking. From this stocking the chairman drew the numbers as follows: poetry reading, Mrs. Powers; vocal music, Don Heberling, accompanied by Miss Barbara Jones, both of White Hall; and group singing from special booklets, with Mrs. J. Lee Hopkins accompanying and Mrs. W. W. Wilkerson acting as leader. Santa Claus in person with small gifts for all concluded the

It was voted during the business meeting, conducted by the president, Mrs. Joseph Smith, to donate three dollars toward the tuberculosis drive. A free will offering was taken for the Park Ridge School for Girls at this meeting.
Mrs. Earl Young and her committee of hostesses served punch and homemade cookies from a beautifully appointed tea table.

Relatives here have received word of the death of Mrs. Charles Conrod of Sparta, the former Pearl McConathy of Raymond, which occurred Tuesday at the Sparta hospital, where she had been a patient for two days. Funeral services were held Friday and burial was made in a bury cemetery.

Kettering Warns Teachers
EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Charles F. Kettering, inventor and former vice president of General Motors Corp., says schools are teaching too much "dead history" and failing to probe the future.
Mr. Kettering told the Assn. of Governing Boards of State Universities, is one of the greatest dangers of modern education.
"I've always had poor eyes and couldn't read a lot, and I think I have been spared a lot of confusion," said the inventor of the automobile self-starter.
Kettering said three dangers of education are teaching fear of failure, how to escape responsibility, and teaching "symbols instead of things."

CARS ARE MY Line
by: E. W. Brown

With winter upon us, and temperatures beginning to drop, the most common sound along any residential street is the grind, grind, grind of engines that are hard to start.
Mixed with this melody is the sound of muffled grumbling from drivers who are slowly, and systematically wearing down their batteries with this early-morning grind.
The battery, more than likely, can be blamed for most hard winter starts. When the temperature drops to zero, a battery in good condition will deliver only 40 per cent of its normal power.
All the more reason, then, to have us check your battery, remove the corrosive deposits around it and make sure you have large enough electrical cables. (Smaller cables put up more resistance to the flow of current.)
Loose, frayed or corroded cable that you may not be able to see with a quick look under the hood can suddenly make a car hard to start in winter when it has been acting perfectly all summer. All these things rob the electrical system of voltage—and in winter the battery voltage may drop to 4 or less, instead of 6 or slightly more (on most cars).
Under these circumstances, your engine may be turning over when you press the starter, but there's not enough voltage left to produce a spark.
There are lots of reasons for hard winter starts of course, some of which I'll discuss in later columns, but the electrical system is usually at the heart of it. The thing to do is come in and talk it over, we'll go over all the trouble spots with you.

Famed Mayo Clinic Has Remained Aloof Despite Controversy And Achievement

EDITOR'S NOTE: In all medicine, few institutions are as famed as the Mayo Clinic. Its fame, however, has been largely confined to medical circles, for it has shunned publicity. Here is a rare inside look at a medical giant which has usually worked in silence while heling to shape modern practice.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter
ROCHESTER, Minn. — The famed Mayo Clinic stands tall in the middle of a city that medicine built on the rolling plains of Minnesota.

And it casts many influential shadows. . . .
Nowhere else are there so many doctors (some 900) in proportion to population (35,000). There are so many that in some neighborhoods, children of doctors grow up calling every man "doctor," including the milkman.

To the clinic come 150,000 patients a year—about 500 daily—seeking checkups, diagnosis, medical or surgical treatment for ailing bodies.

For nearly half a century, the clinic has had notable impact upon American medicine. It pioneered group practice; its staff contributed many research discoveries and new techniques. Its archives hold medical records of two million men, women and children—patients since 1907—a treasure chest of informative medical statistics.

How—and why—has a medical center come to so dominate what might otherwise be a farming and light industry city of perhaps 10,000 souls?

The Mayo Clinic is obviously a medical mecca, dispensing high-grade medical care. Sixty per cent of its patients each year are making repeat visits. Some 80 per cent come from within a 500-mile radius of the rest from points over the globe. Doctors elsewhere often send patients for diagnosis of difficult cases, and often come as patients themselves.

One of its greatest fames is as a diagnostic center; here any patient will be seen by one or a number of famous specialists in different fields if his case requires it. It is the birthplace, too, of dozens of new techniques in surgery and medical diagnosis and therapy; it also draws vitality from being a center of education and research. Research included the development of cortisone, for dramatic effects on arthritis and other diseases, by Nobel prize winners Dr. Edward C. Kendall and Philip S. Hench.

The clinic has never been without critics. Past critics objected to the practice, pioneered here, of putting physicians on salary. Others accused the clinic of indirect advertising. Modern critics, apparently fewer in number, argue that equal care may be obtained by the patient in his own home area, at least in big cities. Some object to certain features of the clinic as "mechanized" medicine. Clinic spokesmen reply that its method of systematic handling of patients frees physicians' time for more complete devotion to the human patient.

Basically, the Mayo Clinic is a group of 330 staff physicians and surgeons who examine and treat patients, set salaries, hire staff, and govern themselves through an 11-man board, of which only two members are laymen officials of the clinic.

Working with them are 575 Mayo Foundation Fellows—physicians and scientists doing graduate work—and 2,000 nonmedical personnel including 100 nurses, clerks, receptionists, librarians, secretaries, interpreters (covering all languages), maintenance staff, dozens of different jobs.

The Mayo Clinic does not own any hospitals. But four hospitals provide hospitalization under direction of Mayo staff members.

The clinic's business office—not doctors—sets the fees, based on the actual costs and on ability to pay. Eighty per cent of the gross income goes to pay salaries. Net income after all expenses is turned over to a nonprofit organization.

The Mayo Assn., which owns the clinic's physical assets, The Mayo Assn., funds go to carry on education and research.

A main portion of the money paid fellows—who spend three to four years in study and research—comes from the Mayo Foundation for Medical Education and Research. This was set up in 1915 by the Mayo brothers with gifts ultimately totaling 2½ million dollars. It is part of the graduate school of the University of Minnesota.

Since the clinic is a private organization, its annual income is not a matter of public record. One estimate from townspeople is that the average patient pays $100 (not including hotel, food and travel costs) making the clinic's income 15 million dollars annually.

Besides salary, staff members receive generous life insurance and retirement benefits and may receive bonuses. The staff physician's income is termed comparable to that of most first-rate men in private practice. Once becoming a member of the medical staff, few physicians leave the clinic.

Mayo Clinic's first seed was sown by a doughty, hard-bitten physician, Dr. William Worrall Mayo, who set up a smalltown practice in Rochester nearly a century ago.

His sons, Will and Charlie, never considered any other possibility than becoming doctors, and they joined their father in practice. The two young Mayos demonstrated surpassing skill at surgery, and their fame spread through the countryside and beyond.

Soon they were speaking of medical and surgical meetings, astonishing surgeons of the day by reporting not a handful but 100 or more bold abdominal operations or other types of surgery. The unbelievers came to Rochester to see for themselves, and went home believing, impressed.

If there was advertising of the Mayos, it was by word-of-mouth of patients and others. Prominent patients attracted newspaper attention. There is no evidence the Mayos ever tried to "plant" news stories or to advertise. Indeed they rather leaned backwards to avoid it, so much so that today the Mayo Clinic does not engage in public relations programs—accepted as ethical and normal at numerous medical centers—to present to the public even the reports of Mayo research delivered at medical and scientific meetings.

As their father retired from active practice, the brothers Mayo took in first one, then another physician as partners. By 1905, four of them were seeing 10,000 patients a year. The Mayos between them were operating on nearly 4,000 a year.

IRVING, Tex. —Yeggs couldn't crack the safe at an automobile firm's office.

Maurice Chevalier Returns To U.S. To Present Program On NBC-TV

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—"On the night of Decem-bare Four," said Maurice Chevalier, "I shall not sleep. Eef thee show ees bad. I shall not sleep because eet was bad. Eef thee show ees good. I shall not sleep because eet was good. No?"

Mais oui, Monsieur Chevalier. For tomorrow at 7.30 p.m. EST that tres joli ami of Americans will present a French soufflé of entertainment as an NBC-TV spectacular. A generation that remembers Chevalier singing "Mimi" and "Louise" in the movies will see and hear him again in those and newer numbers in his first live television appearance. The cast appearing with him includes Jeanne Carson, Marcel Marceau and Pat Carroll.

"It's the new generation that must like me," says Chevalier. "Our French accent is so mad that we're translating."

"Why bait fate, my friend?" Chevalier knocked on a wooden coffee table. "I have not come back to America after eight years to beat the drums for Chevalier. But I have a dream of still being a good will ambassador of the French, only this time on television. I would like to bring Americans once a month the best entertainment that Paris offers."

"Every minute I can spare I've been sitting looking at the television. I am greatly impressed by some of your great television personalities — Murrow, Godfrey, Sullivan. I am learning much. But of course to realize my dream of a program of my own I must be a success on the night of Decem-bare Four. No?"

Well, yes. Since his arrival from his home in Versailles a few weeks ago, Chevalier has completed a limited-run engagement in his one-man show on Broadway and currently is jantining in the supper crowd at the Empire Room of the Waldorf-Astoria. Next he goes to the Dunes at Las Vegas, Nev.

"I am 67, my friend," said Chevalier. "I tell you so you do not think. 'Ah, he pretends to be younger than he is.'"

The fact that Chevalier is 67 may make a lot of people feel old, but it doesn't affect Chevalier. He simply doesn't look or act it. His abundant hair is tinged with gray, but he moves quickly and smiles as easily as ever and his Norman blue eyes are clear. He bears no excess weight. Like vintage French wine he seems to improve with age.

Will he ever retire?

"I think that 95 is the right age for retirement. When you get to be my age it's not that you're mad to make more money. It's that you've been doing something you believe in all your life and you feel you still can do it. You want to be better. You look forward to the new, to something even bigger than before. You understand—no?"

Yes.

CARROLLTON

CARROLLTON — Mr. and Mrs. Charles Daugherty and family of Waterloo were guests Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Thomann. Their daughters, Miss Margaret Daugherty and Miss Doris Daugherty, who attend St. John's school and make their home with Mr. and Mrs. Thomann, returned here with them Sunday after spending the Thanksgiving holidays in Waterloo at their home.

Mrs. Kenneth Black and Mrs. W. Moore entertained the members of their bridge club Monday evening at the Black home.

Mrs. Floris Voiles, Jr. entertained at dinner Wednesday evening at her home honoring her husband who was celebrating his birthday. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Floris Voiles, Sr., and Mayor and Mrs. Ivan Beebe.

TEXAS TOWER, 110 miles off Cape Cod, Mass. (AP) — The Air Force boys have finally found that wild blue yonder.

You can see it outside every porthole of this first offshore radar platform, a 20 million dollar artificial island standing on three legs in water 50 feet deep.

The 150 officers and men assigned to this station have nearly everything except freedom. You can't walk more than 200 feet in any one direction of the 8,000-ton triangular platform.

It is an air-conditioned penthouse decorated in 29 different colors but as isolated at times as if it sat atop the North Pole.

An Air Force major who dropped in for a four hour visit recently stayed to dinner for a week. Pentagon appointments meant nothing, he couldn't leave until the weather cleared up and the North Atlantic in winter is famous for its cussedness.

The stranded major, Arnold L. Pach of Belmar, N.J., projects control officer for the Air Force, commented caustically as he finally got ashore: "It's obvious our greatest problem is just what trapped us—inadequate means of transportation."

This reporter and J. Walter Green, an AP photographer, were in the same party with the major, marooned for nearly a week while four big storms walloped the structure.

Boston, the nearest good harbor, is 150 miles away. Since the tower was towed to the shoal from Boston last July people getting on or off have had to be swung in a bucket from the platform deck 81 feet above the water. In good weather the chances of the 110-ton crane landing you on the bow of a ship are excellent, however it is standard procedure to wear life jackets and unlace your shoes.

In rougher weather many passengers have been dumped rather than landed on the decks and some have spilled overboard. In really rough weather, the maneuver is too hazardous to attempt.

As soon as present construction equipment is cleared away, the Air Force plans to service the tower by helicopter from Cape Cod.

Aware that life aboard the tower is no picnic, the Air Force has developed a rotation plan whereby every job has two men assigned. The men swap jobs with a 30-day interval between the tower and the shore radar base at Truro on Cape Cod.

The tower, nicknamed after oil drilling rigs off the Texas Coast, is a self-contained unit with rows of machinery below decks reminiscent of Jules Verne's submarine Nautilus. The three legs, 1,000 tons each, are of two-inch steel, 10 feet in diameter and filled with stone and concrete. They are 200 feet long, the length being split up between 50 feet in the sandy bottom, 50 feet through the water and 100 feet in air and through the double-decked tower platform.

Some fishermen considered the fixed tower a sitting duck for the first big storm. They are more inclined to think it's here to stay after it weathered a 24-hour blow with hurricane-force winds during the recent series of storms.

At one time two 80-ton fenders broke loose and battered the tower's legs for hours until they destroyed themselves. The third fender was never installed. A base idea—protection against collision from a ship—has gone back to the drawing boards.

Living quarters are like a modern ocean liner.

The kitchen is a stainless steel, all-electric housewife's dream. Basic power to make things hum comes from huge diesel generators in the lower decks.

The big radar tower, one of four to be erected off U.S. shores, will be covered with arctic domes, huge plastic bubbles maintaining their shape by air pressure. To enter and leave the domes you must pass through double doors making an air lock. Requiring no supports, the plastic domes eliminate the possibility of blind spots on the radar scopes.

The net result of the whole radar installation is that the nation's radar aircraft has been extended 100 miles offshore. A base such as this has certain advantages over either patrol ships or radar aircraft. As one officer here says: "You put up your 20 million dollars and you get 10 minutes extra warning."

Three more radar towers are planned for the near future, one on nearby Nantucket Shoals and two further south also on the Continental shelf.

HIATT returned, and Dan saw that he held something bulky beneath his coat. Hiatt opened his coat and pulled out a belt and holstered gun, dropped it on the desk.

"There's your gun," he said. Ernie looked at him as though he had returned from the dead, then he turned away, her eyes misting.

"Denver?" Dan asked. Hiatt shrugged.

"Tied up tight and gagged, looked in the feed room," Hiatt looked solemnly around at them. "Now I've shown my brand to them and there's no turning back for me. If you lose, I lose."

Dan picked up the gun and Phil grabbed it, eyes bleak. "I figure this is mine, considering Paula."

There were just three outlaws left and three men here, though gun speed lay with the killers. Dan spoke briefly, planning a surprise that would even the odds.

Hiatt left the store and walked directly to the saloon. Dan and Phil left by the back way, walked back to the street, keeping the building between themselves and the saloon. They hurriedly crossed the street, cut around the empty stable corral and came to the Wyoming Bar from the rear.

He first saw Hiatt and could plainly hear the man's voice. Juarez, Egan and Vause had their full attention on Gene, who forcefully talked about making the bank loot. Egan looked now and then, Juarez frowned uncertainly. Hiatt continued to talk and his eyes lifted beyond the outlaws to the door. He saw Dan.

"There's one argument Pace will let you hear," he said. He drew his gun without suspicion and flourished it. "This is it."

Dan eased out behind the bar and Phil followed him. Hiatt's gun suddenly leveled as Dan spoke quietly behind the three outlaws.

"Lift 'em, gents."

The three men jerked in stunned surprise and Juarez half turned to look at Dan's gun held on his belt buckle.

"Dehorn 'em," said Dan. Juarez was the most dangerous of the three and Dan watched him closely. Egan, knowing that capture would mean an eventual hangman's rope, made a desperate and deadly bid. Phil moved to obey Dan. For a brief second his gun did not cover Egan and the outlaws hand blurred to his holster. The quick motion swung Dan's eyes momentarily toward him, and Juarez moved with the speed of a striking snake.

DAN heard the shattering roar of guns and smoke billowed between him and the swarthy face of the breed. He heard the snarling whistle of Juarez's slug past his head and then his own finger tightened on the trigger. Someone screamed nearby but Dan was hardly aware of it. He fired again at the breed, dimly perceived in the cloud of smoke. Then he could no longer see Juarez and realized the man had dropped behind the bar. He whipped about, lunging toward the end of the bar to circle it but Phil caught him.

"Dan! Dan! It's over!"

He stared at Phil and realized that the guns had stopped. The smoke drifted in long streamers toward the front door, eddying about Hiatt and Vause, who leaned against the bar, tightly gripping his right arm just above the elbow. Egan had disappeared and Dan's eyes met Gene's.

"Juarez?" Dan asked. Hiatt's eyes cut to the floor.

"He took a bullet in his mouth, Dan. It's over. Vause has a broke-en arm and Phil's slug clipped Egan's skull and he'll sleep long enough for us to hootie him."

Only seconds had passed and yet the action had been so deadly fast that it seemed a long time since Egan had made his desperate bid for freedom. Juarez was dead and Egan lay sprawled in the sawdust, a shallow bleeding wound along his skull. Dan felt a wave of relief sweep over him. He looked in quiet triumph at Phil and Hiatt, then at the outlaws.

"I'll get Pace and bring him over, then we can collect Denver. They'll have heard the shooting at the store. I'll tell them everything's all right." He looked at Hiatt. "Or maybe you'd rather tell 'em."

Gene blushed, grinned crookedly. "I've needed here but Ernie should know so tell her right away."

DAN went to the store, to find Bob and his sister already standing out on the porch, torn by anxiety. He told them what had happened and Ernie's dark eyes came alight again. He turned to Bob, telling him to get Larry Teter and Clay Majors and go to the saloon, picking up Denver while they were at it. Bob hurried off and Dan turned to Ernie.

"Gene's not touched. He's a good man."

"The best," she said quietly. She looked toward the saloon. "Tell him I'm waiting, Dan."

Dan turned and just then saw Paula running toward him. He jumped off the porch to meet her and she fell into his arms.

"Pace?" he demanded. She gasped for breath.

"He tricked me, Dan. He came to fight after you left. He acted as though he knew he was beaten, even talked about it. He asked me to get tobacco from his shirt pocket so he could have a smoke." She looked up at him, fearful and also ashamed of herself. "I... felt sorry, I guess. I bent over him to get it. He moved so fast, Dan! He doubled up and kicked me in the stomach. I fainted. When I woke up, he was gone."

GUILT IS IMPORTANT
RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—The concept which places the blame for juvenile delinquency entirely on parents doesn't ring true to a noted Catholic educator.

This philosophy of excuses ignores the possibility that human selfishness may still exist, says Monsignor Daniel T. McColgan, executive director of Nazareth, a home for dependent children in Boston. He says delinquents must accept some personal responsibility for their offenses.

Speaking to the teachers institute of the Catholic Diocese of Richmond, Monsignor McColgan said a sense of guilt is necessary or there will be no reformation. He added that good human behavior and religion are intrinsically related.
